HIROTA REITERATES JAPAN'S PACIFIC POLICY IN FAR EAST "NO WAR DURING HIS TENURE OF OFFICE"

The appointment of General Minami as Japanese Ambassador to Manchukuo, and commander-in-chief of the Japanese military forces there, makes him virtual ruler of the Japanese advised nation. He is described as an unwavering believer in his country's imperial destiny in Asia.

DIET REPLY TO LENGTHY CRITICISM

"WORKING HEART AND SOUL FOR BETTER RELATIONS WITH CHINA"

PORTSMOUTH TREATY ALLUSION

Tokyo, Yesterday.

Replying in the Diet to a lengthy criticism of the alleged failure of his foreign policy, Mr. Koki Hirota, the Foreign Minister, stressed the fact that his speech of Tuesday last was based on his honest views of the world situation.

He added that he was working heart and soul for the improving and establishing, on a permanent basis, of friendly Sino-Japanese relations.

MR. HIROTA, THE FOREIGN MINISTER, EXPRESSED HIS FIRM CONVICTION IN THE LOWER HOUSE YESTERDAY THAT THERE WOULD BE ABSOLUTELY NO WAR DURING HIS TENURE OF OFFICE.

Mr. Hirota emphasised Japan's peaceful policy, though he admitted the necessity of armament, in view of the heavy armament expansion carried on by other Powers.

Referring to Russo-Japanese relations Mr. Hirota said it was most important and practical to conclude a non-fortification agreement between the Manchukuo and the Soviet, by which he was referring to the Portsmouth Treaty of 1905, which prohibits fortification along the Russo-Japanese border in Sakhalin and also on the border along Korea and Russia, which had worked most satisfactorily. — Reuter.

MORE TROOPS ARRIVE IN KWEICHOW

But Movements Much Hampered

COMMUNISTS MEANWHILE ATTACK IN SZECHUEN

(From Our Own Correspondent) Canton, Yesterday.

The Eighteenth Regiment of the Sixth Division left Pa Kiang Hou by the Canton-Hankow Railway for Canton this morning, and will leave here to-morrow for Kweichow via Kwangsi. Two regiments of the same division have arrived at Wuchow en route to the West.

All the Kwangtung troops have arrived in Luchow, in Kwangsi. Troop movements are rather slow owing to the difficulty of chartering sufficient tow-boats and junks for the expeditionary units. It is not stated when the Kwangtung troops will leave Luchow for Kweichow. (Continued on Page 20)

THREE TOWNS RECOVERED

TROOPS FOLLOWING UP COMMUNISTS

Canton, Yesterday.

It is learned from the Canton Office of the Kweichow 25th Army Corps that, following the recovery of Tsunyi, Mitam, and Sulyang, the Kweichow troops have been pushing their way northward in hot pursuit of the Reds. A fierce battle is now proceeding near Lawshan between the Reds and the vanguard of the division under Lieut. General Fah Fal-chang.

London, To-day.

DANGER OVER

Boir Nor Lake Incident

TO BE LOCALISED

Tokyo, Yesterday.

The frontier incident which occurred on Friday, when some Outer-Mongolian troops suddenly attacked some Manchukuo troops who were patrolling near Boir Nor Lake, which forms the border between outer Mongolia and Manchukuo, will be localised and settled amicably, according to official information reaching the Foreign Office from General Minami, Ambassador to Manchukuo and Commander of the Kwangtung army.

An official dispatch admitted that one Japanese and one Manchukuo soldier were killed and another wounded when the Manchukuo patrol unit of 10 men, assisted by some Japanese, was suddenly fired upon by Outer Mongolian troops near the lake.—Reuter.

JAPANESE MOVEMENT OF TROOPS

8,000 MASSED AT TAKOCHEN

ARMoured CARS STATIONED AT TATAN

Peiping, Yesterday.

After a conference between the local Japan military authorities and representatives of the Military Council it was announced that the principle of settlement by negotiation had been decided on to dispose of the Chahar trouble. The date and place of the first meeting are not yet decided, but it will take place as soon as possible.

The Japanese authorities here now state that they are satisfied that no Chinese troops or militia are left in the disputed area. (Continued on Page 17)

China Prepared To Negotiate

Nanking, Yesterday.

That China is prepared to negotiate a settlement of the Chahar affair is indicated by semi-official reports declaring that if the Japanese are sincere and will not further aggravate the situation the dispute will not be difficult to solve.—Reuter.

INCIDENT AT CHARHAR STIRS CANTON

Nanking Accused Of Cowardice

PRESS CRITICISM

(From Our Own Correspondent)

Canton, Yesterday. The Japanese occupation of Charhar and the killing of 50 civilians soldiers by aerial and artillery bombardments, has aroused considerable resentment and excitement in official and other circles. While public opinion here condemns Japan's latest unprovoked invasion of Chinese territory extending to 1,000 square miles, there is strong criticism of the weak and cowardly policy of the Nanking Government. TROOPS CONVERGE ON HAILAR

NEW WAR THREAT LOOMING

Roving 'Soviet Mongols'

Dairen, Later.

The Kwangtung Army is sending reinforcements to Hailar in consequence of the clash on Thursday between the Manchukuo patrol and Outer-Mongolian troops, according to reports received here.

Manchukuo claims that the Lake Boir Nor region belongs to her and a struggle for possession of the territory is looming.

Various reports received here attribute the attack on the Manchukuo patrol to forces described as "Soviet Mongols," but earlier impressions that Red Guards were involved seem erroneous.—Reuter.

Fire Stricken Vessel Proves Difficult To Handle

London, Yesterday.

The weather having moderated, H.M.S. Frobisher, which has been standing by the burning oil-tanker Valverde since Tuesday, has succeeded in taking the fire-stricken oil-tanker in tow en route for Bermuda.

The Valverde is not very manageable, her rudder being out of action, but is homing to get her steering gear working to-day. She is in no danger from the recent fire.—Reuter.

OPENING STAGE OF INQUIRY INTO MOHAWK SINKING

OFFICERS AND CREW TO TESTIFY

AMERICA MAY APPROVE LONDON CONVENTION

New York, Yesterday.

The United States Steamboat Inspection Service opens an inquiry to-day into the loss of the Mohawk, at which the surviving officers and members of the crew are expected to give evidence.

The Ward Line denies the statement that the Mohawk cut across the Talisman's bows.—Reuter.

A Washington message states that consequent upon the Mohawk disaster, President Roosevelt has indicated that he was seriously considering the desirability of advising the Senate to approve the London Shipping Convention, dealing with the safety of life at sea. (Continued on Page 20)

AMERICAN ADMIRAL PASSES

Former Commander In Chief

Bremerton, Washington, Yesterday.

The death is announced of Admiral Robert Edward Coontz, ex-Commander-in-Chief of the United States fleet, from heart failure.—Reuter.

The deceased Admiral, who was 70 years of age, graduated at the United States Naval Academy in 1885. He was confirmed by the Senate as Chief of Naval Operations in 1919 and appointed by the President as Commander-in-Chief in 1923. He served in the Spanish-American War, the Philippines Insurrection, and in the World War, for which he received various medals and decorations.

AIR RECORD IN DANGER

LINDBERGH TO MAKE PIONEER PACIFIC FLIGHT

Awaiting Termination Of Hauptmann Trial

BLAZING TRAIL OF AMERICAN TRANSPORT SERVICE

New York, Yesterday.

Colonel Lindbergh's intimate friends state that after the conclusion of the Hauptmann trial he expects to fly across the Pacific as a preliminary to establishing an American air transport service between California and China.

His probable route will be Los Angeles or San Francisco to Hawaii, thence to Midway Island, Wake Island, Guam, Yap, Manila, and Canton.

Colonel Lindbergh is expected to fly a four-engined trans-ocean type of aeroplane, which will probably cover the longest stretch, that between America and Hawaii, in 12 hours, as compared with Miss Amelia Earhart's 18.—Reuter.

Colonel Lindbergh is reported to be reticent as to his rumored pioneer flight across the Pacific on behalf of Pan American Airways, but it is not likely that the task would be entrusted to anyone else. Also, Colonel Lindbergh having previously made a flight to the Orient via Alaska, when he made acquaintance with the Oriental aviators whose cooperation is highly important in developing the traffic.

The machine used will in all probability be the gigantic Sikorsky clipper Pioneer, specially constructed for the Pacific service, which is capable of cutting Amelia Earhart's record of 18 hours down by one-third.

No date has yet been fixed, even tentatively, for the start of a California-China service.

LOCAL LADY RIDER IN CAR SMASH

Miss A. Dodwell Has Lucky Escape

CAR BADLY DAMAGED BY COLLISION WITH LORRY

Miss Ann Dodwell, the local lady rider, was yesterday involved in an accident on Reservoir Hill, Kowloon, when her car, No. 2469, collided with motor lorry No. 3886 of the Hong Kong Signal Station, Whitfield Barracks. She luckily escaped with a small scratch on her face, caused by broken glass from the windscreen, which was completely shattered.

Pte. D. Thompson reported at the Mong Kok Police Station that at about 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon, while driving the lorry down Reservoir Hill towards Kowloon, he collided with Private Car No. 2469, while coming round a blind corner.

The car received damage to the mudguard, door, running board, hood and windscreen, while the lorry had only its rear mudguard and petrol tank dented.

WEATHER FORECAST

A strong anticyclone covers China and Manchuria, pressure being highest over the lower Yangtze Valley. A shallow depression is situated to the east of Naha, moving east. The local forecast for to-day, as issued by the Royal Observatory last night, is: "cloudy, drizzle or light rain."

CRICKETER RESPONSIBLE FOR ACCIDENT

Nine Months In Second Division

DISQUALIFIED FROM DRIVING

London, Yesterday.

The Northamptonshire County cricketer, Mr. V. W. C. Jupp, has been sentenced to nine months' imprisonment in the second division and disqualified from driving for two years, in connection with an accident, in which the car he was driving killed a pillion passenger on a motor-cycle last summer.—Reuter.

Vallance Jupp is probably the most accomplished all-rounder in amateur cricket. He has gained the cricketers' double of 1,000 runs and 100 wickets in the same season on 10 occasions (beating W. G. Grace, who performed the feat eight times) and has passed the 1,000 runs mark 13 times.

Having played against Australia in a Test, in 1921, he took all 10 Kent wickets for 127 runs at Tunbridge Wells in 1932.

In 1921 he was secretary of the Northants Club, and became captain in 1927. He has, however, since resigned the captaincy, though he still continues to play for the county.

SPANISH ROYAL JEWELS VANISH

INFANTA EULALIA'S GREAT LOSS

BANK OF SPAIN DENIES RECEIPT

Paris, Yesterday.

"It is too dreadful, not for my sake, but my grandchildren's," said the Infanta Eulalia, Aunt of ex-King Alfonso, to Reuter's representatives, alluding to the mysterious disappearance of several hundred thousand pounds' worth of her jewellery.

Jewels in Spain at the time of the Revolution were regarded as private property by the Government, who ordered them to be placed in the Bank of Spain. The Bank later informed the Infanta that there was no record of their receipt.—Reuter.

SHORT STORY

Eyes In The Air

By F. A. M. WEBSTER

WHITE, silent, immense, a world of tumbled mountain-tops stretched away and away. The fields of virgin snow, where the foot of man had never trod, which the eyes of man had never seen, were broken here and there by dark patches of pine trees and gorges so deep that the shadows collected between their frowning walls looked like wedges of solid ebony.

There was no movement in earth or air, that world seemed utterly dead; and yet, high up in the blue empyrean, a single speck hung motionless; so high up, so still that it looked like some tiny insect, or one of those annoying "spots" that float persistently before the vision of a bilious person.

Presently a snow hare loped out from the fringes of a pine forest and, instantly, that speck in the brooding heavens grew bigger, as an eagle came racing a mile downwind in less than thirty seconds. In the appalling silence which prevailed the hare heard clearly the whistling of the wind as the great golden eagle hurtled earthwards.

With never a glance thrown upwards the creature raced for safety, but cruel talons closed upon him before he could reach the shelter of the trees, and then his body went limp, as the talon of the eagle's strong hind too bit clean through his back-bone.

Aquila rose at once and flew at leisurely speed to a ledge of rock, 1500 feet up the mountain, where he and his mate started repairing their eyrie some four months earlier, both birds battling home through the wintry gales with big pine branches gripped fast in their curved beaks.

Seven weeks later two large, round, white eggs had been laid and now there were two hungry, week-old eaglets, clad in warm little coats of white down, eagerly waiting for food.

The mother, from a view-point close at hand, watched the return of her mate, but he did not remain long at the eyrie, and, within a few seconds of his taking wing, she sailed down to her nest, tore up the limp body of the white hare he had left behind and commenced feeding her noisy, hectoring daughter.

The male eaglet got what was left, after his sister's voracious appetite had been satisfied. Even so, he not allowed to enjoy his scanty meal in peace, for his bad-tempered sister chased him round and round the nest. The mother sat by, totally indifferent to the squabbling of her progeny.

Her eye-lids were open, but her sight was veiled by the winking membrane which birds possess, drawn over the pupils of her eyes. She knew that her half-starved son's greater agility would save him from the attacks of his sister and that a month hence, when they would just be getting their first feathers, the two young eaglets would be living happily enough together.

Meanwhile, Aquila had mounted once more upon soaring pinions and now hung poised in the eye of the golden sun, while his gaze swept left and right, backwards and forwards, across his vast domain.

The eaglets had been fed. It still remained for him to find food for himself and his mate, but below him not a speck showed and nothing moved upon the stainless white expanse of the virgin snow-field.

With wings beating slowly the great eagle mounted in a series of wide spirals to a yet greater altitude, which would give him a more extensive view of the land spread out beneath him. And still nothing moved in all that broad expanse of solitude.

Wings fluttering, the beautiful bird hung poised on, with sudden boat of powerful pinions, sailed majestically from side to side. At last his patience was rewarded by the appearance of a small herd of wild sheep, high up the side of one of the mountains.

Aquila watched them for a moment, then folded his wings and dived earthwards with the speed of a falling thunder-bolt. Lower and lower the gleaming, brown body hurtled and then, when it seemed inevitable that Aquila must crash to his death, the wings were partly opened, the disposition of the head was slightly altered and his headlong down-rush flattened out with the easy grace of an airplane making a perfect landing. The sheep had scattered before ever the eagle's shadow fell upon them; but, as his body shot forward, travelling parallel to earth, his strong talons closed upspringly upon the well-grown lamb he had selected as his victim. But, although his claws bound fast, he did not kill the lamb outright and it struggled so violently with its hindquarters that he was forced to drop it before he had risen a couple of hundred feet.

The lamb fell upon rough, stony ground and was killed instantly, while Aquila, freed from its weight, shot upwards. The female eagle, who had seen her mate dropping like a stone from the heavens, had meantime left the eyrie to hover close at hand. Now, seeing the crushed body of the lamb resting upon the rocks, she pounced upon its flanks. Aquila joined her, and in a moment both birds were tearing at the carcase.

Before their meal was finished, however, a most strange sound disturbed them, the like of which they had not heard before. It was like a low, vibrant humming at first, but the noise increased rapidly in volume, until a droning, intolerable hum seemed to fill the entire universe. Then a black shadow passed over them.

Terrified for the safety of her eaglets, the mother took off and sped away to her eyrie. Aquila rose also, and, flying as he had never flown before, strove to take the air of this strange but rash intruder. The bird, monster, or whatever the thing was, might be as big and as powerful as the fabulous Great Auk itself, and still Aquila would allow no trespasser in his domain.

On and on the great eagle flew, mounting higher and ever higher, until he thought that he had reached the altitude from which to stoop and strike. But as he fell, with hooked beak and curved talons itching for action, fierce heart beating madly, the thing simply shot away from under him. By the time he had climbed to altitude again it was no more than a dwindling speck in the distant heavens.

Aquila, poised upon fluttering, widespread wings, waited until the decreasing hum of the monster's passing had sunk into silence and the infinite blue of the heavens had absorbed the last vestige of that fast diminishing speck. Then he flew back to his eyrie, a puzzled and an angry monarch.

Many years had gone by since any bird of prey had dared to fly in the skies which Aquila regarded as his own preserves; nor, indeed, was there room for many eagles in that part of the world, for the mountains were barren, desolate slopes, unable to support much life, beyond a few birds, rather like ptarmigan, some mountain sheep, and an assortment of foxes, hares and other small creatures. But today this strange monster had passed through Aquila's territory, and now the great eagle sat on a lonely pinnacle of rock dreaming of the fight there was bound to be should the rash intruder dare to return.

Meanwhile, Ramon Nunez had landed at San Fero, and the town was on fete because he had flown over the wide ranges of unexplored mountains that had never been crossed in all the long history of man.

That night the intrepid young man was made much of by his friends, while the local pressman gave him no peace because they wanted the story of his epoch-making flight across the mountains. But Nunez gave the same laughing answer to both intimate friend and importunate reporter.

"Yes, I have mapped out an airway over the mountains which will enable future aviators to avoid the earth attractions and the air pockets," he stated; "but I'm not giving away a scrap of information, either as to the route I followed or any difficulties. I may have experienced until my chief has read my report."

"But, senor," protested the Pressman, "dozens of other pilots have attempted the same flight without success; you alone have crossed the last land of mystery; surely you must have been very lucky; will you not tell us your story?"

"No," answered Nunez, "the land of mystery has kept its secret for thousands of years. What is

RE-ENTRY CARDS IN CONTRACT

(By Lt.-Col. H. M. Beasley)

THERE are some tantalising and at the same time interesting situations which arise during the course of a Contract Bridge rubber.

I refer now to difficult points in the play of a hand by the declarer. The experienced player will no doubt recognise the fact that he has encountered similar problems, and knows therefore how to deal with them, but to the novice the solution is not easy.

Here is one particular case, and there are many similar with which you will have to contend: You may find that you have a good suit in dummy's hand which you can easily establish, but you are unfortunately still faced with the fact that dummy holds one rather doubtful card of re-entry, which you will need to enable you to cash in these winning tricks.

Before you decide on your plan of the play, you must consider carefully what hope there is

- of our ever being able to make use of the established winning tricks, or
- whether it would not be advisable to abandon an attempt to establish these winning tricks and adopt other tactics which may offer a better chance of success.

You must therefore make a mental review of the possible distribution of the important cards held by the opponents. When you have made up your mind that they must be distributed in a definite way, if you are ever to attain your objective, you must then boldly play the hand as if the distribution of the cards were exposed, and known to you, and just hope for the best.

Here is the problem to which I refer:

The Contract is 3 No Trumps by South. The opening lead by West is the 5 of Clubs.

North:—
S—2 3
H—4 6
D—A J 10 9 7 2
C—Q 4 2
South:—
S—A Q 9 5
H—A K Q 3
D—Q 8
C—A 8 6

With this combination you are in a rather awkward dilemma. You (South) would like to develop the Diamond suit, but have only two Diamonds. You may find that East holds the King and two or three small ones.

If, when you commence to clear the Diamond suit, East does not play the King until the second round, you will then find yourself in possession of several winning Diamond tricks, provided you can get into North's hand with the Queen of Clubs; but the Queen of Clubs is not a sure card of re-entry.

How are you to play the hand? West leads the 5 of Clubs. If this card is his fourth best, East holds two cards higher than the 5 (by the rule of eleven). It would be futile to play the Queen of Clubs from North's hand on the first trick, as this procedure would extract his only possible card of re-entry for the Diamond suit.

A Common Problem
North must play the 2 of Clubs on the lead of the 5. If East now plays the 7, what should South play?

If South plays the 8, there is no possibility of establishing the Queen in North's hand as a card of re-entry; West may hold 4 or 5 to the King, consequently if you do not take the first trick with the Ace, the Queen of Clubs can never become a card of re-entry.

You will certainly lose one trick by playing the Ace on East's 7. If East holds the King, 7 only, and West 5 to the Jack.

However, if this is not the distribution of the suit, the only line of play which will leave you with a hope of establishing the Queen of Clubs as a card of re-entry is to win the first trick with the Ace of Clubs. When one day, or one week, in all that space of time? Soon I shall fly back to Huano to make my report, and then my chief can tell the world, or not, as he sees fit."

Eyes In The Air

And that was all the information they were able to get out of him. Two days later, as the dawn was breaking, he stood at the side of his airplane, chatting with the station ground officer.

"Do you think you will be able to find your way back safely?" queried the official.

Nuñez permitted himself to smile.

"I tell you that I have conquered the very spirit of that land of desolation," he boasted. Then he climbed into the cockpit of his machine and gave the order "Contact."

More than two hundred miles away Aquila had just flown back to the city with a hare he had caught for the breakfast of his young eaglets. But one hare, as he well knew, would not satisfy their well-high insatiable appetites and so once again he took wing, while his mate came dropping down to the nest.

He was soon high up in the morning heavens, eyes in the air watching the earth for his lawful prey, when his sharp sense of hearing once again detected that faint distant drone, which sounded so much like the buzzing of an angry insect.

Aquila checked in the middle of a long, slanting glide and rose in a series of big spirals, with wings beating furiously. This time he had no intention of allowing the enemy to cheat him by the deceptive speed of his flight.

Louder and louder the vibrant hum of powerful engines echoed through the abysmal silence, larger and larger grew the speck that had appeared suddenly in the sky to the north. Eyes in the air watched it take shape, but Nuñez did not see the golden eagle, for some instinct of the wild had warned the bird to poise himself in the eye of the sun.

Aquila waited until the oncoming airplane was flying perhaps 300ft. below him. Then, backed by the sun, he tore downward, flying on a long slant to meet it. And still Nuñez did not see this fierce enemy until a mid-air "impact" seemed inevitable.

In the last saving second, however, the glare of the sun, flung back from the whirling propeller blades, struck the eagle full in the eyes, dazzling him and causing him to swoor instinctively to one side. Otherwise man, bird and machine must have gone crashing earthwards.

As it was, Nuñez flung up his hands to protect his face, and the machine, momentarily out of control, slipped into a spinning nosedive. Aquila came round in a wide sweep, screaming with baffled rage. His harsh cries quickly brought his mate upon the scene and Nuñez, pulling in "plane out of its dangerous dive just in time, found not one but two great eagles circling overhead and waiting to renew the attack.

How the man longed, in that moment, to feel the spade-grip of a machine-gun nestling into his hand, but he was totally unarmed. Faster he flew, striving desperately to win free and climb again, but still the great birds flew above him, with one or other of them constantly rushing at his unprotected head, only to sheer to one side in the nick of time.

Nuñez was baffled, for all the time the birds were driving him him down, and suddenly he realised that although he had found a route that had enabled him to avoid air-pockets and earth attractions, he had yet to conquer the very spirit of the last land of mystery, which was impersonated by those two great golden eagles.

The fascinated him. He could not take his eyes off them. Suddenly an icy blast struck him in the face as a pass in the mountains opened up before him.

To enter that pass meant certain death, for flying between the frozen walls would be impossible. The man moved joy-stick and control bar, but the plane responded sluggishly. Nearer he drew to the frowning, merciless mountain tops, and knew he could not clear them. There was a rending crash, a sudden burst of flame, and Aquila and his mate rose in soaring spirals to avoid the oily smoke that rose from the blazing airplane.

Next day the Director of Civil Aviation ran a red line through "Proposed Route 13 Huano-San Fero," for Nuñez had not returned, and too many good pilots had been lost in fruitless attempts to open that road.

Far off, on wide spread wings, Aquila hovered, watching over the last land of mystery. Eyes in the air, searching a white, silent, immense world of tumbled mountain tops for any sign of his lawful prey moving upon the virgin snow-fields. There was no movement in earth or air, that world seemed utterly dead.

THE END.

SAUSAGES BY DAY BOMBS BY NIGHT

Irish "War" Claim In Court

MACHINE DESTROYED BY FREE STATE TROOPS

A machine which made sausages by day and bombs by night in a confectioner's shop in Cork was the subject of a claim for compensation at Cork last month.

William McLaron, formerly a confectioner at North Main-street, Cork, applied £250. He had returned from Montreal with his son to prove his claims, which included items for equipping a foundry for making munitions for the Irish Republic Army.

It was stated that the innocent-looking sausage machine was housed in his shop near the Bridge-well. Whenever the police called, it was making sausages. At night it was connected up with another contrivance for making bombs.

The machine was finally destroyed by Free State troops. Judge O'Connor reported for £112 and allowed £40 expenses.

the Diamond suit is established, lead a small Club up to the Queen.

You will find that a situation of the above description is not at all unusual, and the points to which I have drawn your attention may assist you to solve a similar problem.

The Inhibitive Bid
The problem given to-day is an illustration of the employment of what is commonly known in Contract as an "Inhibitive Bid."

An "Inhibitive Bid" is in reality a bluff bid, introduced during the late stages of the bidding with the express object of deterring the opponents from leading a suit in which you have a losing trick.

This bid can sometimes be employed with success in the case of slam bids where the opponents would be deceived by the nature of the bid, and in consequence discouraged from leading the only suit which will break the Contract. However, be on your guard for a bid of this nature if you are playing against a slam bid.

Ann Harding Copies Mrs. Vanderbilt's Action

New York.

Miss Ann Harding, the film actress, and former wife of Mr. Harry Bannister, the actor, is taking a leaf out of Mrs. Vanderbilt's book and is in Reno seeking full custody of her daughter, Jean, aged nine.

She already has the custody of the child for ten months each year, but she thinks she should have her all the time.

The divorce decree gave her former husband the right to have Jean with him for the other two months, and he is defending the petition which would deprive him of that privilege.

Armed Guard
"I'm in Reno, not as an actress, but as a mother who wants and has the right to bring up her child to the best of her judgment and ability," Miss Harding stated.

"It seems strange to me that courts have anything to say about such a matter. But they do, and I'm going to ask the court to give me the right to my own baby."

Mr. Bannister spends most of his time in New York. Jean goes to school in Hollywood and is attended daily by an armed guard.

GIUGE CROWD SEE SOUTH CHINA BEAT NAVY IN SHIELD REPLAY

Chinese Now Favourites For The Senior Trophy

Tam Kong Pak, South China's brilliant inside-left, scored two of the three goals that eliminated the Royal Navy in the Senior Shield replay yesterday.

Athletic Win

Recreio Score First

CHINESE FORWARDS EXCEL

The Chinese Athletic surprisingly eliminated the Recreio in the Second Round of the Senior Shield in their encounter on the Club ground yesterday, when they annexed the odd goal in three in an exceptionally good match.

Despite the inclement conditions, prevailing, the display of both teams provided some abnormally good football. The feature of the game was the speed at which the play was maintained, and this was one of the main attributable reasons for the high standard of the match.

The Athletic's success, without the slightest shadow of doubt, due to the inclusion of Chan Chan-woo and Tsui Ah-fai. The mere fact that they were in the team was the best tonic the Athletic had received in many a season. Every movement of the attack had as its originator the brilliance of Chan, and whenever the ball came within striking distance of the Recreio goal he was invariably in attendance.

Tsui's Great Display
In the defensive and distributive phases, the work of Chan's confrere, Tsui Ah-fai, was abundantly evident. Clever with either feet or head, Tsui held his defence together so well that the Recreio found that the slightest deviation of an intended pass resulted in the commencement of an Athletic attack which took the

K.C.C. TWO DOWN AT TENNIS

Shanghai Champion On Winning Canton Side

Despite the rain, two matches in the lawn tennis encounter between the Kowloon Cricket Club and their Canton visitors were decided yesterday at the K.C.C., both being in favour of the Canton team.

Mrs. K. H. Fisher, who partnered G. Bodiker, is a newcomer to Canton from Shanghai, where she held three titles, the Ladies' Singles, Mixed Doubles, and Ladies' Doubles.

There will be further matches this morning, commencing at 9 o'clock, weather permitting.

Results of yesterday's matches were:
C. E. Watson and Mrs. W. G. Fisher (Canton) beat Mr. and Mrs. W. Kirby (K.C.C.) 6-3, 6-2.
G. Bodiker and Mrs. K. H. Fisher (Canton) beat E. C. Fisher and Miss M. Griffiths (K.C.C.) 6-5, 4-6, 6-4.

"Y" LADIES BEAT 9 OPPONENTS

Miss Thomson Gives Fine Display

Nine Recreio Ladies were defeated by the Y.M.C.A. Ladies by two clear goals in a friendly hockey game at King's Park yesterday. Both the goals were scored by Miss S. Dalziel, at centre-forward, in the first half.

The play throughout was very scrappy, due to the poor state of the ground.

During the second half, during which the "Y" allowed the Recreio to have Miss W. George, their custodian, the Recreio improved.

Miss E. Thomson was soon playing the best game since her return, and supported the forward line well, her accurate passes always finding their objective. Miss P. McCaw, at inside right, also played a good game.

For the losers Miss A. Alves, inside-left, Miss L. Xavier, centre-half, and Miss M. Basto, right-back, were the outstanding players.

SPEEDY FORWARDS CARRY THE DAY

WONG MEE SHUN AGAIN GIVES GREAT DISPLAY

A CROWD approaching a ground record witnessed the Chinese premier eleven gain entrance into the Second Round of the Senior Challenge Cup when they defeated the Navy at Caroline Hill yesterday by 3 goals to 2.

A heavy drizzle fell throughout the match and as the ground had been used for a Second Division match previously, conditions in general favoured the Navy—the ball and the ground were heavy and as a result much of the speedy play of the Chinese was discounted.

Except for the first 15 minutes when the Chinese held the limelight, the game was a very evenly contested one, both teams working very hard and playing excellent football, and the result is quite a fair indication of the run of the play. The Chinese were just one goal better than the Navy, and they obtained this goal to win.

The Navy were beaten mainly by Fung King-cheung and his forwards, who showed perfect understanding—long passes from wing to wing, with a man on the spot to complete an excellent movement.

Leung Wing-chiu came back to fill the pivot position, releasing the versatile Wong Mee-shun for the inside-left position. Both put up a fine show, Wong in particular. He played a very clever game, and his subtle movements deluded West very frequently.

Lee Ting-sang fully justified his claim to inclusion in the Interport team. Never ruffled, he cleared in fine style and saved many an awkward situation. Wong Wing was very safe. The better of the two goalkeepers, he anticipated well, was very sure in his handling, and sent two away often with excellent clearances to the wing.

Navy Nonplussed At Start
The Navy were at sixes and sevens during the first 15 minutes. They had little understanding, and the defence was kept very busy during this period. Pepper played an excellent game in goal and saved some great shots, whilst Rycroft and West, in front of him, were a veritable tower of strength.

Pyatt came back to the defence and played a great game, the three Rycroft, West and Pyatt—undoubtedly saved the Navy during those trying opening minutes.

Pyatt Impresses
It is understood that West is leaving for Singapore and England this month and that this was his last game. If the Navy are to find another half-back there is no doubt as to who West's successor should be. Pyatt is the coming strong man in the Navy's defence and will certainly make a name for himself in local football.

McGuire was a very good pivot, but Love, at Left-half, was not on form, being too slow in the heavy going.

The forward were fair, but they missed opportunities, both Skinner and Cannell sending in some excellent centres only to find the inside men too far back and golden chances going astray.

The Navy were weakened in the attack by the absence of Wearmouth. Had he played there might have been no rejoicing in the Caroline Hill Camp this week-end.

Engineers Win Over Service Corps

BUDEN SCORES ONLY GOAL

A hard tussle was witnessed in the Junior Shield encounter between the Engineers and R.A.S.C. before the Engineers won by the only goal.

The Engineers scored their goal after five minutes, following a smart run through and fine pass by Creagh, who centred for Budden, inside left, to score.

The ground was heavy, and a drizzling rain fell throughout the match.

NO CRICKET YESTERDAY

Owing to yesterday's rain, all League and friendly cricket fixtures were unavoidably postponed.

Club, are a good team, but they will not offer the same opposition as did the Navy yesterday, and it is extremely doubtful whether the Chinese will be so extended in the remaining hurdles before a Shield triumph.

The Chinese were away from the centre kick, Pepper having to dive to save a great shot from the left by Wong Mee-shun, Tam Kong-pak receiving from the kick out to direct a terrific shot goalwards which just grazed the post.

The first goal was scored by Tam Kong-pak after eight minutes, a cross shot from Wong Mee-shun being directed well out of Pepper's reach. Wong had hard luck a moment or so later when Rycroft intercepted a shot right on the goal line, the Navy right back heading to West who cleared well down the field.

Skinner Goes Close
The Navy settled down soon after the Chinese had scored. Skinner sending a nice centre to McGuire, who returned it to the left wing for Skinner to skim the upright with a shot which Wong Wing would have had great difficulty in stopping.

Wong Mee-shun then gained possession and ran down the centre before taking a deliberate shot from 20 yards, Pepper diving full length to push the ball around the post for a corner. Wong Wing emulated Pepper when he dived to gather a ball from Skinner. Roberts received the ball and, kicking too hastily, missed an opportunity by shooting over the top. Play was very even to the end of the first half.

Navy Equalise

On resuming Cousins opened the attack with a great shot from the wing which hit the side of the net. Skinner shooting wide on gaining possession from the kick out. The Navy equalised after 10 minutes in the second half, Cannell placing the ball for Skinner to beat Wong with a great shot which hit the roof of the net.

The Navy's jubilation was short-lived, however, for within the next minute the Chinese had regained the lead, Wong Mee-shun passing squarely across the goal for Fung King-cheung to score, his side's second goal.

The Navy attacked strongly from that moment, and, for 10 minutes, had the Chinese penned in their own half, but failed to score.

Tam Scores Third Goal

Tam Kong-pak made things fairly safe for South China when he received the ball from a scramble and, seven yards from the goal-line, could not fail to beat Pepper with an unexpected shot which the latter did not see.

With only five minutes to go the Navy put the Chinese definitely on the defensive when Cannell helped in a fine shot from the wing by Skinner, a great shot, it was a goal all the way, but Cannell made assurance doubly sure by assisting the ball in its slight goalwards. From that goal to the final whistle the Chinese packed their goal, and it was well high impossible for the Navy to score.

South China:—Wong Wing, Lau Mau, Lee Tin-sang; Lee Kwok-wai, Leung Wing-chiu, Lau Hing-chi; Leung In-chang, Tam Kong-pak, Fung King-cheung, Wong Mee-shun and Tao Kwai-shing.

Navy:—Pepper, Rycroft, West, Pyatt, McGuire, Love, Roberts, Cousins, Craig, Cannell and Skinner.

Police Prove Too Good

GUARDIANS OF LAW DESERVE SUCCESS

In conditions far from ideal for good football, the Police encountered no difficulty in qualifying for the next round of the Senior Shield when they gaining a comfortable win over Kowloon by three goals to nil.

The usual staunch band of supporters who braved the elements were treated to an interesting display of football, in which the Police definitely held the upper hand from start to finish.

Nothing went right for Kowloon. Their defence was never given time to settle down by the fast and energetic Police forwards, and the attempts by the halves to get their forwards moving were invariably foiled by a pass that was either too hard or not hard enough.

Morrison and Davies worked like trojans, and it was undoubtedly due to their untiring efforts that the score was kept reasonably low. Morrison, received one or two heavy tumbles in the first half, but his tackling and quick interceptions and clearances throughout were the feature of a splendid defensive display. He received admirable assistance from Eastman, who had an extremely difficult game opposing Green and Moss.

The game opened with a sustained attack by the Police, but, although shots were sent in from all angles, not one reached Boys, the Kowloon defence blocking their goal well. Stephens finished off the raid with a shot which just went wide.

Slacken Pace When Game Is Won

FERNANDES SHINES FOR LOSERS

On the Club ground, yesterday, the Navy, the holders, defeated the Recreio in the Second Round of the Junior Shield by 4 goals to 1.

The Navy forwards, despite the conditions, were very fast and their energy was limitless throughout the game. In converting to goalward efforts anything which showed promise of an opening, Glass scored himself prominent. His efforts, combined with the work of O'Donnell and Mules, found no great difficulty in surmounting the barrier of the Recreio defence, and, though they slackened when once in a commanding position they were always dangerous in the proximity of their opponents' goal.

The Navy commenced the offensive from the opening whistle, but for some considerable time they could not pass Fernandes until O'Donnell ran through and tapped neatly out of the former's reach as the culmination of a clever movement originating from the Navy's right-wing.

Marques went alone with a good drive at McSweeney's goal, but the Navy were soon on the attack once more, and Adams increased the lead with a nice angle shot, which Glass followed with another goal, this time a header which gave Fernandes absolutely no chance of saving.

INTERPORT SOCCER

[To the Editor, the "Sunday Herald," Sir,—As the time is drawing near for the Interport football match and the Selection Committee are about to make their final choice of who will represent Hong Kong, perhaps the following team "my selection" will help them in reaching a decision:

Wong Wing; Li Tin Sang and C. Pile; Leung Wing Chiu, Pardoe, and Parker; G. Gosano, Stephens or Higgins; A. V. Gosano, Ridley and Bickford.

The defence cannot be improved, the half-back line picks itself, and the forward line is the best that the Colony has to-day—in fact they are capable of winning the match themselves.

The many readers who have "selected" winning teams during the last week or so seem at a loss as to where A. V. Gosano should play if selected. I know from experience that he is a centre-forward

BORDERER PLAYERS LEND A HAND

ARTILLERY HELD BY EAST LANCES

Two friendly rugby games were played at Sookunpoo yesterday, the conditions proving ideal after several weeks of "playings on concrete". In the first game, the Royal Welch Fusiliers defeated H.M.S. Medway in a very close game by three tries (9 points) to nil.

The Fusiliers were reinforced by the three Borderer players, Lloyd, Gilmore and Jones, who were again outstanding, being featured in several good rushes.

After 10 minutes the Fusiliers opened the scoring through Pte. (25) Jones, who crossed wide of the posts. Lloyd failed with the kick.

SYD STRANGE AS RESERVE

With all hopes of obtaining the services of another centre-three-quarter having been abandoned, the Colony Interport Rugby selectors have accepted the offer of Syd Strange, the Interport soccer player, to travel up to Shanghai with them as the sixteenth man, and as a result, have now included D. A. Coppin in the team.

This will probably result in a reshuffle, L. G. Robertson being taken out of the pack to fill the full-back position, while Lamont will probably play as centre three-quarter to McGilchrist, Griffiths will then partner S. C. Archer on the other wing.

The vacancy in the second-row of the pack will probably be filled by McLellan, while Coppin is likely to fill the vacant wing-forward berth.

Syd Strange, the popular soccer Interporter and former captain of the Hong Kong Football Club, has only played one game of rugby in his life, but, being physically fit and having a fair knowledge of rugby, should prove a useful reserve should he be called upon to play in Shanghai.

The Interport team now reads:—L. G. Robertson; S. C. Archer, R. H. Griffiths, G. P. Lamont and H. R. McGilchrist; J. Hutchison and H. C. McKee; A. F. Walkden, W. E. Peers, H. O. Bramble; J. C. Millar, K. A. Munro and D. A. Coppin.

WEST INDIES HOLD WHIP HAND IN SECOND TEST

SURREY SKIPPER NOT OUT

Port of Spain, Yesterday.
Losing the wickets of Townsend, the Derbyshire all-rounder, Leslie Ames, the Kent stumper-batsman, and Maurice Leyland, the brilliant Yorkshire left-hander, for the addition of three runs before a crowd of 5,000, England concluded the second day's play 102 runs behind with only two wickets in hand in the second Test against the West Indies. England won the first Test.

The West Indies added 18 to their overnight total, Constantine lashing out to score all of them, while Martindale defended stubbornly at the other end.

LOSING THEIR SKIPPER AT 15, THE ENGLAND ELEVEN COLLAPSED ALARMINGLY, HALF THE SIDE BEING BACK IN THE PAVILION WITH ONLY 23 RUNS ON THE BOARD.

Patry Hendren, however, received valuable support from Iddon, the Lancashire all-rounder, and in a dour stand added 71 for the sixth wicket, of which the Middlesex player claimed 41. Iddon went on to score 73 as the result of a magnificent all-round display which included seven boundaries in his stay of 170 minutes.

Aided by E. R. T. Holmes, the Surrey captain, Iddon saved the day, for England, and just before the close of play the double century was hoisted, but only after 8 wickets had fallen.

Wyatt, who won the toss and sent the West Indies in to bat on a perfect matting wicket, secured 3 for 33, but failed with the bat, scoring 15 out of the 15 added for the first wicket. Play will be resumed to-day and on Monday.

Attractive Programme
Arranged

OPEN QUARTER AND HALF MILE EVENTS

Following the example of other large city Police Forces, the Hong Kong Police are holding their first annual Athletic meeting this afternoon on the South China Athletic Association ground at Caroline Hill, commencing at 2.30 p.m.

An attractive programme of 19 events including a half-mile event, open to members of the Services and Volunteer Forces, will be featured.

There is also a quarter mile event open to members of the South China Athletic Association, and, as the latter possess some excellent middle-distance runners, this event should be one of the main features of the programme.

By kind permission of Captain R. B. Davies, V.C., D.S.O., A.F.C., R.N., and Officers of H.M.S. Cornwall, the Cornwall's Royal Marine Band will render selections.

At the conclusion of the programme, Lady Southern, O.B.E., will present the prizes.

NOTE BY "CRICKETER"

Constantine will go down in cricket annals as one of the greatest all-rounders the game has produced. Many consider him the finest fieldman in the world—I shall never forget seeing him catch Jack Hobbs at square leg off a full toss at Kennington Oval in 1928.

The Surrey crack had scored 200 against Warwickshire the day previous and was attempting to secure his second double century in succession, Constantine merely put up his hand and a great innings of 159 was closed by a sensational catch off a rank bad ball.

It was following that 1928 series that Constantine signed professional forms with Nelson in the Lancashire League, and his presence was responsible for that Club's sudden prosperity. After a prolonged discussion he was granted the privilege of being allowed to play for the West Indies when they sent a team to England and was allowed to return to his native land in the event of an M.C.C. tour.

Dismissed Whole Side

In one game in the Lancashire League, against Church, he scored 64 in hurricane style, and then dismissed all the opposing batsmen for 34 runs, clean bowling eight, catching one, and running out the other!

Very fast, though not as fast as Larwood, he was very erratic at times, though a very useful bowler to have on any side.

WHAT PALESTINE IS TO-DAY HOW STONY DESERT IS BEING TAMED

Where Modern Civilisation And Primitive Life Meet

(By H. D. ZIMAN)

THERE is a proverbial American who (if his fellow-countrymen's travel-books may be trusted) accompanies every second party of visitors to Palestine, exclaiming aloud: "Say, I didn't know this was the place the Bible was written about. If I had, I guess I'd have brought one with me."

For the rest of us, who have some memory that Palestine is indeed the Land of the Book, the heart lifts up noticeably when the low range of Mount Carmel begins to shine blue through the haze as the steamer approaches. Yet, oddly enough, it was of more recent history that my neighbour, a Frenchman, spoke as we coasted along the Bay of Acre. His words were all of the siege of St. Jean d'Acre and Napoleon's Eastern campaign.

The coast of Syria where the French writ runs to-day (and runs, be it said, through a stiff embroidery of armed forces) lay still in our sight to the north. But before the ship drew up to the quay of Haifa's brand new harbour we had come beneath the British mandate for Palestine, whose immigration and health officials were presenting us with forms drawn up in the three official languages, English, Hebrew and Arabic.

Land of Milk and Honey

A notice at the Customs, forbidding entry to foreign bees, aroused rather curiously the recollection that we were entering, the "land flowing with milk and honey." Palestine, honey, I was later to learn by experience, has its merits. Palestine milk has, as a rule, to be boiled.

Collaboration between the port authorities and the Palestine Railways brought it about that before passengers could get ashore with their luggage the only afternoon train to Jerusalem had gone.

Half an hour's bargaining with an Arab middleman (and one cannot adapt oneself too early to the custom of the country) secured us

THE DIFFERENCE
Some middle-aged moralists wonder what the young people of the present day are coming to; others, where they are going to.

Expensive
We are told that some canaries cost as much as £50. That is nothing to what some larks cost.

Christmas-is-Coming Thought
I'm worried about the past; I'm scared of the future; and I just can't bear to think of the present.

HURRAH!
An eat-more-bread campaign has just been launched. How this carries the mind back to the eat-more-biscuit campaign in France.

Difference of Opinion
Writing of a recent voyage, a True To Type novelist says he resolved to take a substantial meal every day—and who got rich so quick that he kept it up. Frankly, I should have preferred to keep it down.

BEDTIME PROVERB

traveller that Palestine is neglected rather than uncultivable.

There are oranges, bananas, apples, wheat, oleanders and cacti growing in the Jordan valley. Olives are cultivated in the hills, fruit in the coastal plain. Wells are being sunk. Artificial irrigation is spraying the long hidden waters. The land may be largely desert, but it is a desert of which parts may be tamed.

Wayside Impressions

It would, indeed, be a quick-witted traveller who could formulate all these impressions on the road from Haifa to Jerusalem. He has enough to do noting the orphanages and churches of Nazareth; the road barriers at Jenin, where cars are searched for oranges which might infect the southern groves with blight; the grim Arab town of Nablus where the last of the Samaritans guard their Pentateuch and make bloody sacrifices of lambs on the hills at Passover; the cubical police-posts and the smart native police in grey shorts, white shirts and black fur shakos.

Thanks to them the modern Good Samaritan has little opportunity to find upon the way-side travellers battered by robbers. Yet even on the main roads robbery under arms still takes place from time to time. A ringleader was rounded up and shot not long ago, but even so banditry spasmodically shows that it is not yet extinct. Police patrols have brought the instances of highway robbery down from nearly a hundred a year in 1931 to a third of that number in 1933.

Palestine's transition from primitive to civilised life may be seen illustrated in a less bloodthirsty manner in the new Jerusalem. The modern city, spreading fecklessly without parks or open spaces, strikes the eye favourably enough with its clean-cut, flat-roofed, pink or white stone houses, each with electric light and power and running water.

Modern Jerusalem

A less favourable impression is made upon the feet by roadways dotted with pot-holes and loose stones. The pavement ends without warning, and street-lighting does not penetrate the new residential quarters outside half-a-dozen traffic arteries.

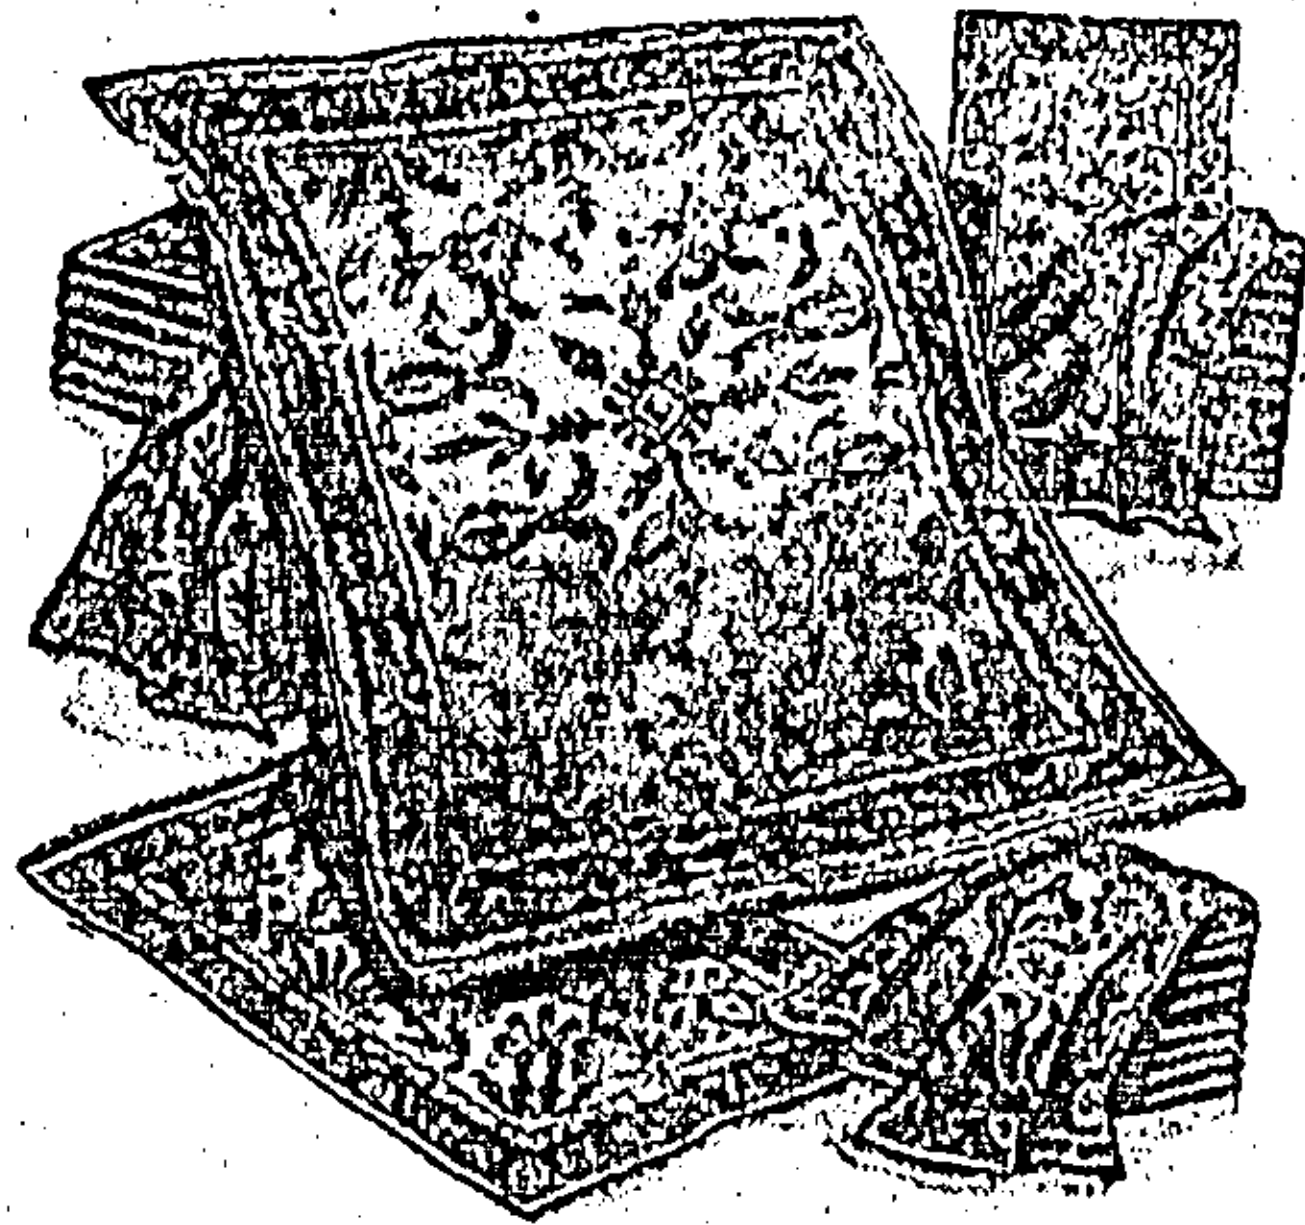

Where pavements exist, a camel or mule running amok may speed along these paths to jostle the unwary pedestrian under the wheels of these strong and silent closed

EUKUTOL - - -

THE BIOLOGICAL SKIN TONIC

BEAUTY nowadays is not just an accidental gift of nature; it can be attained also by well thought-out and systematic care of the body, that most exquisite and wonderful organisation which has come to us from the Divine hand. And although beauty is more than skin-deep, a dazzling skin is indispensable to beauty. A few minutes devoted daily to the care of your skin will keep you young and supple, healthy and attractive. "Beauty and health are the chief sources of happiness," says Beaconsfield.

But how, you ask, can I appropriate beauty? Our medical, chemical and cosmetic experts have solved the question for you, Madam.

The preparations forming the foundation for the Eukutol System are the outcome of years of scientific labour, of investigations into the natural requirements of the skin, into the active elements and nutrients needed by the skin for the unmitigated renewal of its beauty. The Eukutol System is explained in a small booklet and when you have read it you will join the already vast ranks of Eukutol adherents. You will have every reason to be grateful for the results of the System. Make a beginning this very evening, with a free sample from all dispensaries and stores.

Mr. Woo Gives Advice To Schoolboys

Government Vernacular Middle School Progress

The Government Vernacular Middle School held their annual prize distribution ceremony yesterday at Pokfulam. The hall was crowded to capacity with students and their parents.

Among those present were: Messrs. H. K. Woo, LL.B., Y. F. Law and Y. S. Wan, Inspectors of Chinese Schools, and Messrs. Fung Ping-wah, B.A., Chan Kwan-po, B.A., Fung Ping-fun, Chow Ping-woon, and Loh Hel-tong.

Mr. Li King-hong, the Headmaster, presided. After reading the annual report he asked Mr. H. K. Woo, LL.B., to present the prizes to the winners.

The Headmaster commenced proceedings by reading the annual school report, which stated:

The school year under review began in November, 1933, and ended in July, 1934. Our maximum enrolment was 252, as against 253 in 1933, and 251 in 1932. In spite of our school fees having been raised at the beginning of 1933, and the present economic depression was reflected by the decrease in the number of pupils in many local schools, I am glad to point out that our numbers remained steady without substantial change. This may serve as an ample proof that there is the demand from the community for this vernacular form of education.

Increased Attendance
The average daily attendance for the whole school year was 93.82 per cent. against 92.98 per cent. in 1933, and 85.67 per cent. in 1932. This steady increase shows that the boys have been more mindful of their studies and that their health has been improving, though we are working in buildings in unfavourable surroundings. For the latter reason a word of appreciation is due to the Medical Officers of Schools for their attentive care of our pupils.

After reviewing the year's achievements in sports the Report deals with school successes in examinations and notices the founding of an Old Boy's Association, to which Mr. Fung Ping-fun, its first president, had generously donated a complete reprint of the set of Chinese books kept at the former Imperial Library.

A tribute was then paid to those who had given financial and other help to the school, and especially to the two Chinese Members of the Board of Education, the Hon. Dr. S. W. Tao and Mr. Li Tsi-fong, and to Mr. H. K. Woo for consenting to distribute the prizes.

The Report continues:—
The Middle School age of the pupil, it may be needless to point out, is the most important period of his character formation. With some good grounding in the Confucian classics a youth may at least realise some of the basic principles one should follow as a member of the family, of the community, and of mankind. The systematic doctrines of Confucius are based on conscience and virtue, and confined to man in relation to his fellow creatures. Some such background is plainly essential, and more especially at a time when our young men of China are being introduced to modern knowledge. Moreover, inefficiency in one's own native language must be a great handicap in life. It is our claim to meet the above needs of the Chinese youth.

Finally, recognition is made of the devoted work of the school staff and the kindness of the honours of the prizes.

Mr. Woo's Speech

After the prizes were presented Mr. Woo addressed the students as follows:

"I have to thank Mr. Li for asking me to come and distribute the prizes this morning. It is an honour which I appreciate in the highest degree. I have also to thank Mr. Li for his kind reference, in the Report which you have just heard, to my being a good example of bilingual attainment. This is a great compliment, which must, however, be qualified by some words of warning. The warning is contained in a well-known Chinese saying 'If you take as a model something from a higher category, your attainment will only be of the mid-cars which are the capital's taxis. No doubt for this reason every driver seems to keep one finger upon his klaxon to make sure that his car is no longer silent. Where pedestrians must walk in the road, a no-hooting rule would be an order for manslaughter, but the police now have instructions to prevent what may be called reflex hooting, where there is no danger, by a personal warning to the drivers. Jerusalem's telephone service (though not the trunk lines) will compare favourably with that of London. But its houses are not numbered and there are not more than twenty streets which have names. Your host cannot tell you his address. He bids you ring up such and such a taxi-company and ask them for a driver who knows my house.

The Ancient City As for the Old City, the historic walled Jerusalem, it has only a single stretch of street between the Jaffa Gate and the Zion Gate available for wheeled traffic. Fascinating to the sightseer, delightful to the antiquary or the pilgrim, it has beside the modern city the now unfashionable dignity of an undrained slum.

Agents—W. R. LOXLEY & CO. (CHINA), LTD.

Steep slippery cobbles form the common ground for the clatter of the loaded mule, the mincing pad of the camel, the European perspiring towards the historic Holy Places, the Sheikh on his stately way to the Dome of the Rock, and the water-seller with his bell and goat-skin or his immense glass bottle, swaying on through the chaffers outside the shops.

The Town Arab in European clothes with a red turban (which we call a fez); the villager with his striped robes and flowing cotton head-dress; the coiffed French nun; the green-turbaned Haji who has been to Mecca; the rich farming Fellah with a turban of flame-colour; the young Zionist from off the land with his blue shirt and shorts; the Greek priest with his hair done up in a bun; the old-fashioned Polish Jew with a round fur-trimmed hat and velvet gabardine; the modern Jewish doctor in a lounge suit and felt hat, all pick their way through the high City gates over Bedouins lying or squatting on the ground, their goats nibbling comfortably at a piece of garbage.

Three Faiths Except during periods of unusual political passion—aroused as a rule during the Holy Days of one of Palestine's three main faiths—Christian, Moslem and Jew, East and West, Arab and European mingle happily enough in the streets, though they have little common social life. An Eastern saying describes Jerusalem as a golden bowl filled with scorpions, but the scorpions, under British rule, are normally quiescent. The admirable police measures have reduced petty crime and pickpocketing to a degree hardly credible in a medieval city without proper locks or proper lighting, where an infinity of alleyways seem to offer bag-snatchers an easy escape. From 362 cases of petty crime in the Old City in 1931, the figures of 1933 came down to 182.

There are 27,000 persons living within the walls, but beyond policing, civilisation has little to offer the Old City's inhabitants. It would take a bold man to lay hands on its picturesque and hallowed hovels in the name of Housing or Town-planning. Sanitation here must give way to sentiment.

Only a catastrophic fire could give the excuse for a wholesale clearance. Is it far-sightedness or cynicism which has left the municipality of Jerusalem without a fire-engine?

Performance Of "Elijah" In Preparation

THE "HONG KONG SINGERS"

It is understood that, towards the end of March the "Hong Kong Singers," recently augmented, will sing, Mendelssohn's oratorio "Elijah" in St. John's Cathedral, by kind permission of the Dean.

This promises to be a unique occasion as not only does this ever-popular oratorio never fail to make an appeal to all interested in the best choral music, but the contrasting styles of its solos and choruses provide ample scope for enthusiastic singers.

Mr. J. Anderson Miller, L.R.A.M., who will conduct, has had considerable experience in choral conducting and has also specialised in voice culture. He has conducted this oratorio many times before and, under his leadership, one can be assured that the dramatic feeling of the work will be fully explored and the delicate part-writing artistically exemplified; in this his choir should excel.

Mr. Frederick Mason, A.R.C.O., L.T.C.L., has kindly consented to preside at the organ. As this will be one of his last public appearances before his regrettable departure from the Colony, there is an added reason for the fullest public support of this laudable undertaking.

Principals From Choir

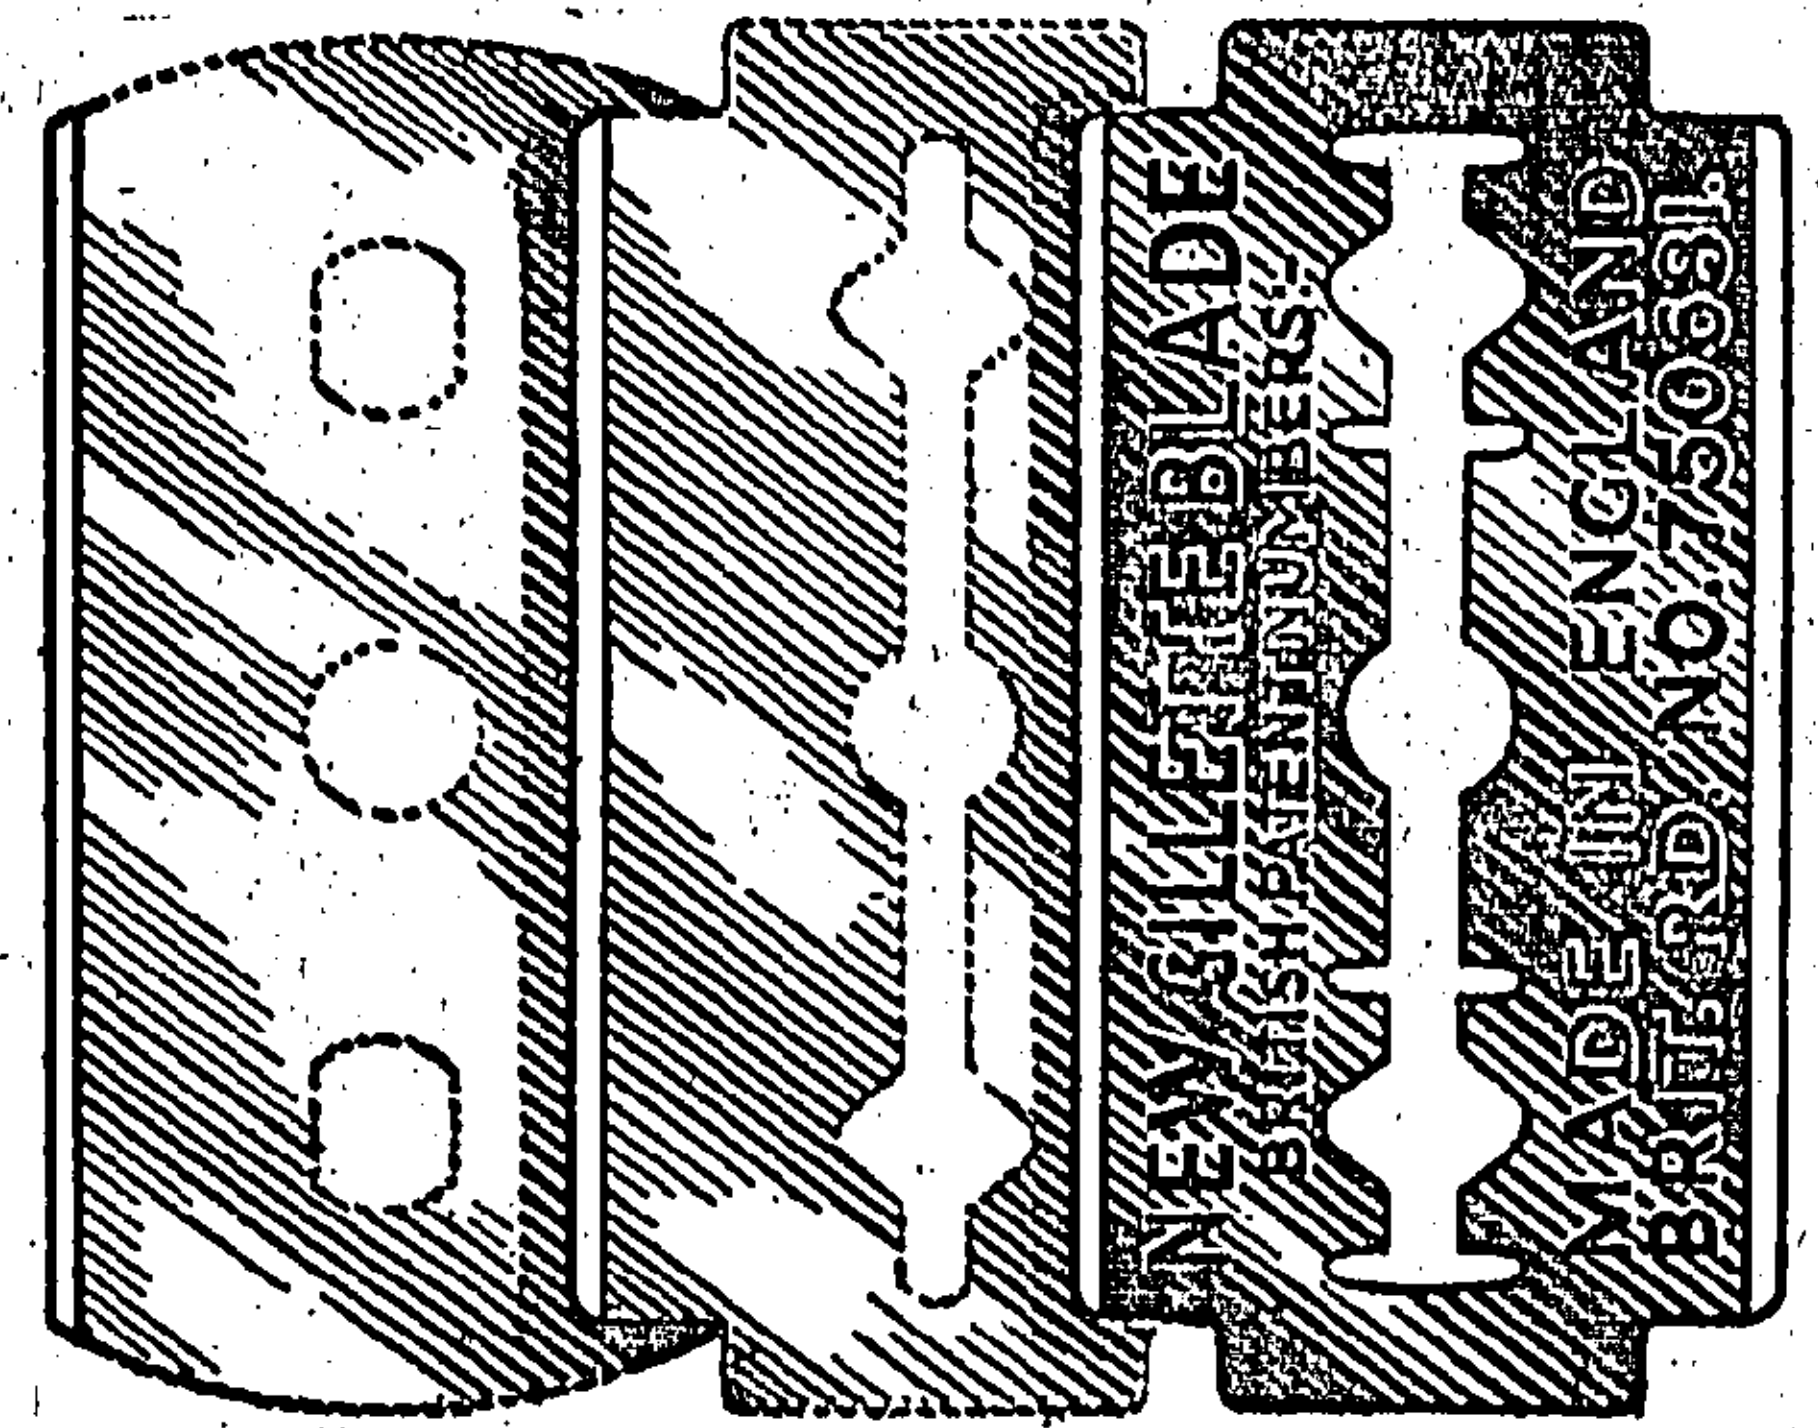

The eight principals required are being chosen without difficulty from the ranks of the choir. As this work provides not only some of the best solos in music, but is unique in its trio, quartette and double-quartette writing, there will be ample opportunity for an excellent ensemble. The role of the Prophet is being taken by a singer who has seldom been heard in public before, but it is expected that his artistic treatment will fully preserve the high traditions of the work. The enthusiasm already exemplified by the "Singers" leads one to expect that a high standard will be set in Choral singing.

It is regretted that no further vacancies exist in the choir for basses, but a few sopranos and tenors will be welcome, especially if the music is familiar to them. Application for membership should be made to the Secretary, Mr. T. E. Jackson, No. 9 Homantin Hill, Kowloon, Tel. 50403.

The proceeds will be devoted to the funds of the Hong Kong Benevolent Society.

Benevolence

THE old saying "as cold as charity" contains a whole philosophy of an era when it was either true or thought to be true that jobs were to be had for the asking, and that penury was a crime or a punishment or at least an offence to society. That was never entirely true, for it omitted to take account of the disability caused by accidents and illness, and even in the days of the greatest expansion of trade there were seasonal rushes and slack times, changes of fashion, and losses due to the bankruptcy of employers. Nonetheless the attitude of mind persisted, and gifts were handed over to applicants as a kind of blackmail, for the sake of a quiet life. In most of the industrial countries the advent of what is called "technological unemployment"—the discharge of men because improvements of machinery have made reduction of human labour possible,—has made it necessary to create a whole new system of help, partly to bring the man and the job together, and partly to tide over the interval of waiting for a job which is difficult to find. A very large portion of the time of our own and of other legislative bodies and administrative Departments is occupied with this subject; and the tendency is to seek the utmost elasticity of organisation by working through local committees who have personal knowledge of the applicants of how help will be most effectively given. Now that the old haphazard methods, which meant a lot of overlapping and waste, have been abolished, it would be hard to find any social activity anywhere that bears a richer harvest of comfort and human brotherhood than the work done by these local committees.

In Hong Kong, which in this respect as in others has its own peculiar conditions, we are apt to forget the devoted and exacting work of our Benevolent Society, which has since 1889 offered a helping hand to all "persons other than members of the Portuguese or Chinese community in the Colony." Needless to say, the restriction is not meant to indicate any lack of sympathy with those communities. They have their own organisations. Some division of work is essential, and without this society the European and American "hard-up" would simply be stranded. The Government makes a grant on the "dollar for dollar" principle up to two thousand five hundred dollars; so that every donation is doubled in value.

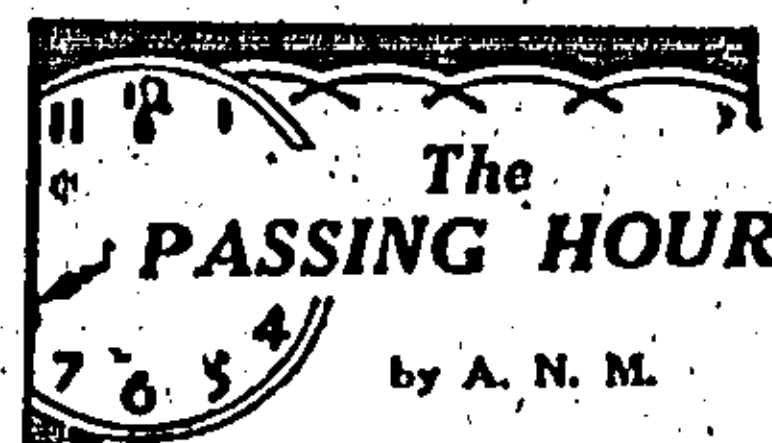

The Society is often overlooked in the matter of cash subscriptions from a delusion that it is principally concerned with the distribution of used clothes; but a very slight survey of its work is enough to indicate that most of the cases call for some expenditure of hard cash. The widow of an Irishman who died suddenly is assisted by the payment of the school fees for her three children. A building construction engineer who was disabled by the loss of an eye through accident, and who was temporarily out of a job was helped for a month till he got work again. A man who lost his hearing was sent to a doctor who gave him gratis examination and advice; the Society then paying for the necessary treatment. Payment of dentist fees for some countless patients saved a great deal of suffering.

Then there are the cases in which an assisted passage will take an applicant either to a job waiting for him or her elsewhere, or to relatives who will be able to give hospitality. An Australian girl who came here as a governess had a nasty fall which injured her spine, and incapacitated her for work; a grant enabled her to return to her relatives. An injustice was done to the Society by an inexact report of a case in one of our local Courts which made it appear that the Society had sent a man to the House of Detention; the fact was that the man was going there because he had no passport, and merely applied for a chit because he only spoke French and could not make himself understood. The function of the Society is not to make Court cases but to prevent them.

Of course, we have Societies that honour St. George, St. Andrew, and St. Patrick; and when they are able to help they will be consulted in suitable cases. But it is the Benevolent Society that provides the regular helping hand and the needed information and encouragement. We hope that all those who are kindly disposed to people who are down on their luck will enable the Society to present a good balance sheet at the Annual Meeting on 21st February.

MARRIAGE

MOUTRIE-CHURCHILL.—At St. John's Cathedral, Hong Kong on Saturday, 26th January, 1935, Geoffrey Clifford, son of Mr. C. F. Moutrie, of Whetstone, England, to Joan Mabel, daughter of the late Dr. J. Aylward Churchill and Mrs. Julian H. R. Hance, of Hong Kong.

THE SWAMI PARAMANANDA

HONG KONG is a gate through which all manner of pilgrims pass Eastwards and Westwards before our eyes; so that even the Government has at last noticed the fact sufficiently to consider whether anything can be done to make them feel welcome. What we do not so often notice is the drift of thought one way or the other which our visitors are capable of imparting with a little encouragement. A little intellectual curiosity adds much to the interest of life, and there is nothing like personal contact to vivify the philosophies and crusades of which we read casual descriptions in our magazines. The Swami Paramananda, who was the guest of the Theosophical Society last Monday night, was as picturesque a figure as one had a right to expect, and had the religious mystic's winning personality. He spoke with the assurance of a skilled lecturer and expressed much benevolence to all and sundry; it would be unreasonable to expect a stranger in the course of a brief meeting to do much more.

VEDANTISM

THE Swami is well known in the United States, where he established a mission of the Vedantic way of thinking at Boston, and subsequently a retreat, or Ashram, in California. What is the reaction of the ordinary Westerner to the teaching, based on a return to the older Indian philosophy, with its profound simplicity? It is quite rare to hear any sentiment expressed with which one cannot agree; and yet one does not seem to have got much forerunner. We agree that all men ought to be brothers; the trouble is that they do not act that way. That Truth Is One seems to be indisputable; the trouble is that in expressing it people develop different ways of explaining it, and very soon begin to fight for their own way. There were no Mahomedans in the audience. One was reminded that after dropping as much controversial matter as possible, the new Bill for Indian Government Bill has over four hundred clauses and many schedules; and it is still doubtful whether it will succeed in maintaining external order, which is a long way short of general goodwill. One cannot as the old saying is, jump out of one's skin, and though one agrees with the sage as to the ultimate ideal of justice and mercy and brotherly kindness, we begin to walk towards it from the other end of the road.

MAN WHO APPLIED TACTICS TO AIR FIGHTING

WHATEVER may be the reaction of the hero of the Great War, the schoolboy fiction, or the ruthless, cold-blooded cunning of a hunter and killer, there is little doubt that he will single out from among other than that of a desire for fame or trinkets. He was that rare being—not every generation produces one—a man fighting for a Cause.

Mannock hated with all his soul the reactionism of Prussian militarism. Master Of Air Combat "Thus was transformed a man of warm, generous, full-hearted nature into a highly-skilled agent of destruction, bitterly and relentlessly determined to achieve victory. To fight is not enough. You must kill! was his final instruction to his fighting comrades."

Hong Kong Personalities

MR. M. R. IGLESIAS

This is the twenty-sixth of the exclusive series of sketches of leading Colony residents by Mr. A. S. Konyga, the talented Hungarian artist.

OUR Personality of the week is Mr. Manuel Rivera Iglesias, the Consul-General for Peru in Hong Kong.

Mr. Iglesias was born in 1893 in Iquitos, in the heart of the South American continent. Sent by his parents to study in Lima, the capital, he graduated in the Faculties of Natural Science at the Universidad Mayor de San Marcos, the oldest University of America, founded in 1551.

Mr. Rivera Iglesias dedicated his activities to journalism before entering the consular service, occupying several important posts on the leading newspapers of his country. In 1915 he entered the consular service, being first appointed Consul at Honduras, Central America. In 1921 he was named Consul in Belem do Para, Brazil.

This Consulate is of great importance to Peruvian interests due to its neighbourhood to Peru and the many commercial questions arising therefrom between the two countries. While holding this post Mr. Rivera Iglesias, besides being Consul, was Customs Agent of Peru, collecting the export duties on Peruvian natural products from the forest regions which had to be paid in Belem. The Brazilian authorities considered that these goods had become liable to local taxation when they entered Brazil, but Mr. Rivera Iglesias, relying on existing treaties, gained his point.

After nearly four years in Brazil, Mr. Rivera Iglesias went, in 1925, as Consul at Yokohama, whence he was transferred to Calcutta in 1928. After a year in India he was again sent to Japan as Consul in the important port of Kobe. In March of 1932, the Peruvian Government transferred him to this Colony.

"THE WORLD MOVES ON" NEW "CAVALCADE"

Madeleine Carroll, the heroine of the love story of a century.

GREAT DRAMA AND GREAT DIRECTION

STRONG CAST SUPPORTS MADELEINE CARROLL, LOVELY NEW STAR

WITH a powerful story of epic sweep, one of the strongest casts assembled in many moons and directed by one of Hollywood's acers, Fox Film's "The World Moves On" is coming to the King's Theatre on Wednesday, heralded as "the love story of a century." "The World Moves On" has been acclaimed as the picture Hollywood will have to beat for the 1934-35 award of the Academy of Motion Pictures Arts and Sciences to "the best film of the year."

Described variously by the New York critics as "a notable addition to cinema's best," "a worthy successor to 'Cavalcade,'" and "a magnificent drama," the picture was produced by Winfield Sheehan, vice-president and general manager of production.

Played By Strong Cast

Madeleine Carroll, acclaimed for her work in "I Was A Spy," was summoned to Hollywood for the leading feminine role.

Franchot Tone was engaged as the perfect foil for Miss Carroll's blonde beauty. He was "borrowed" from M.G.M.

Then Siegfried Rumann, who gave such an unforgettable portrayal as Preysing in the stage version of "Grand Hotel" on Broadway, was given the role of a baron opposite Louise Dresser.

Reginald Denny was cast in another important role, and Raul Roulien, handsome young South American, in another.

Lumsden Hare, Dudley Digges, Brenda Fowler, Marcelle Corday, Barry Norton, George Irving, Ferdinand Schumann-Heink, George C. Scott, Claude King, Ivan Simpson, Frank Moran and Stepin Fetchit, the coloured comedian, were recruited to complete the cast.

Directed By Ford

John Ford, who had just completed "The Lost Patrol," was drafted as the director, and William Darling, winner of the Academy Award for art direction on "Cavalcade," was assigned to design the settings.

Mr. Sheehan himself conceived the basic idea for the story. He then called in Reginald Berkeley, whose outstanding screen achievement had been the adaptation of "Cavalcade," described the theme to him and prescribed a definite plan for its development.

George Schneiderman is credited with the photography; E. F. Grossman, sound; William Darling, settings; Rita Kaufman, costumes; and Arthur Lange, musical direction.

Bitterness of hate, lust of power, futility of conflict, glory of faith, ecstasy of love!

These are the elements, it is announced, that go to make up "The World Moves On."

Chronicle the drama of a family which, over four generations, spreads its branches over four nations of the earth, the picture comes adorned with the reputation of an epic film. Prior to its general nation-wide release it thrilled packed houses for weeks at a special two-day, $2 showing in the Criterion Theatre, New York. It is said to be the most ambitious work to date of Winfield Sheehan, the producer.

The film will reveal, for the second time in America, Madeleine Carroll, who is co-featured with Franchot Tone, and the work of both won the praise of the New York critics and the plaudits of the crowds.

The starry-eyed beauty and her leading man share their laurels, however, with the distinguished supporting cast.

"She's a great actress, because she worries not about how she looks but about the performance she is giving." Thus did Franchot Tone compliment Madeleine Carroll after their work in "The World Moves On."

COPIES OF HISTORIC CUSTUMES

Faithful Replica Of Queen's Ball Dress

EARLY NINETEENTH CENTURY GOWNS REPRODUCED

Originals of the gowns reproduced for Madeleine Carroll to wear in the early sequences of "The World Moves On," belonged to three of the most romantic women in the history of the period, according to William Lambert, young designer who fashioned them. The ballroom gown of stiff white bouffant satin is an exact replica of the dress worn by Queen Victoria at a Court ball held in honour of her ascension to the throne of England. Even the real lace fichu, the net overskirt studded with pearls and trimmed with posies of ribbons and rosebuds, the long blue satin sash, the little white satin slippers and the chiffon fan are all copies of the accessories.

A lovely creation of sage green moire silk, with billowing sleeves, a pleated frill basque, and ornamented by prim velvet bows from neck to hemline, has been copied from an old painting of a gown-worn by Lola Montez, a Limerick girl, who became uncrowned Empress of Bavaria.

The third dress is copied from an old portrait of Florence Nightingale, taken when she was a girl.

Modesty About Her Achievements

WINS SUFFRAGES OF WHOLE FILM COLONY

"Imagine a film star who methodically and regularly debauches her ego!"

With this remark, Hollywood marvelled at Madeleine Carroll. Madeleine's naturalness and utter lack of conceit "floored" the film colony.

"How do you manage to remain so modest?" interviewers asked her.

"Temperament is merely bad temper," she replied, "and there is no excuse for either bad temper or conceit when everything possible is done to make us happy in studios."

"I, personally, could not become conceited in Hollywood if I wanted. Here nobody knows anything about me, or my past work, with the exception, perhaps, of my performance in 'I Was A Spy.' Furthermore, I realise Hollywood does not want to know anything about my past. It is my present work, which will be judged in the future, that matters."

"Moreover, I am so dazed and impressed by the magnificence of the studios, the competence of everybody working in them, and the lavishness with which money is spent on a production, that I am often too awed to offer my opinion when it is asked."

OPENING KING'S THEATRE, WEDNESDAY 30TH

AMERICA DISCOVERS BRITISH STAR

"THE WORLD MOVES ON" GIVES HER FINEST ROLE OF CAREER

ABSORBING in theme and tremendous in its scope, "The World Moves On" takes its rightful place among the truly great creations for the screen. With a power and sweep that hold its audience spellbound, it reveals itself as an epic of magnificent proportions, deathless beauty and universal appeal. "The World Moves On," which is coming to the King's Theatre on Wednesday, has been described as "the love story of a century"—and aptly so. It is all of that—for undying love, of the kind that endures for generations, is the dominant note from the first scene to the last.

Second only to the production itself in striking a new note in screen entertainment is the happy combination, as a romantic pair, of Madeleine Carroll and Franchot Tone. Let Fox Film, which brings this invigorating milestone to the screen, take a bow for entrusting the chief roles to these able young players.

Besides gracing the picture with her fresh, ethereal beauty, Miss Carroll contributes a performance that will rank with the immortal portraits etched for the screen by all the great actresses of the past. Here is a difficult role, but in this new beauty's hands it remains secure from distortion. Briefly, you believe in her and in everything she does and says.

It is a distinct step forward in the creation of entertainment with universal appeal, and sets unquestionably a new standard of cinema excellence.

The Magic Spell

Based on man's struggle for security through the ages, this unusual film answers the questions bewildered humanity is asking to-day. And in its telling, the story casts a magic spell over the listener.

To two young players, Winfield Sheehan, the producer, has entrusted the major burden. They are glamorous Madeleine Carroll and that very able actor, Franchot Tone—and they carry it well. Miss Carroll is not only lovely to behold—with her fresh, starry-eyed beauty—but she succeeds admirably in breathing life into the character she portrays. And Tone is the perfect choice for her screen team-mate.

MADELEINE "DEBUNKS" HOLLYWOOD

Home Of Romances Is Not Romantic

MISS CARROLL GIVES HER
CONSIDERED OPINION

Madeleine Carroll, glamorous film actress, has been "debunking" all the glamorous tales of Hollywood.

To reporters in her Mayfair mansion she said:

"I encountered, everywhere I went, some of the nicest people I have ever met. I was made to feel that everybody was my friend."

"Hollywood itself is not romantic. It is just a commercial provincial town. Everybody has work to do, starts early in the morning to do it, and has little time for frivolity when it is ended."

"I was there ten weeks. I went to five parties. One was my own."

"The town at night is almost dead. I saw no evidence of wild parties. I did not even see a gun."

During the first few days everything seemed crazy. Every two hours police on motor-cycles roared past, making an ear-piercing scream with their sirens. Traffic stopped.

"Later I found that the motor-cycle squad was being used time after time by some local dignitary who wanted everyone to know he was going to the railway station."

"Kidnapping? Do you know I never heard Dillinger's name mentioned once? And many film stars do not even lock up their homes."

WOMEN CAN STOP FURTHER WAR!

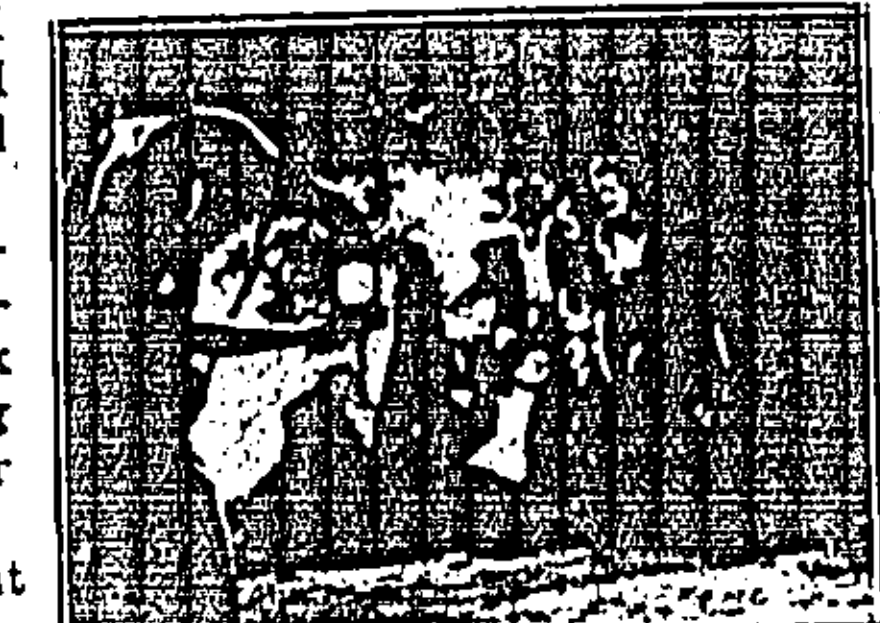

Madeleine Carroll's
Inspiring Words

ADVISES ALL WOMEN TO BE
"FIGHTING PACIFISTS"

It is up to the women of all nations to prevent another World War!

That is the admonition sounded by Madeleine Carroll.

"There will be no more wars."

she says, "If women keep their heads and refuse to let husbands and sons take up arms."

"At this very moment, practically every European power is manufacturing, in the normal course of its chemical industries, enough poison gas to wage war to-morrow."

"Not a very pretty picture—is it? Not a very heroic way to die—perhaps with one's children—and yet that is only one of the things we must be prepared to face if there is another war."

"But we women are not going to let it happen. We are going to do everything we can to prevent the war-mongers of the world from letting loose this monster in our midst."

"It is useless to be mere pacifists. We must be 'fighting pacifists'!"

Madeleine Carroll, began her career as a school teacher. She taught French.

NARROWLY MISSES BRICKBAT
IN NEW YORK STRIKE

To Madeleine Carroll, who will be seen with Franchot Tone in "The World Moves On," life for about two months was one long riot.

First, she encountered severe rioting in Rome, where she was enjoying a vacation before sailing for California to start the film.

In Paris, shortly afterward, she witnessed the Stavisky riots, narrowly escaping injury when the Gare de la Paix was wrecked.

The boat journey was a private riot between Miss Carroll and the elements. Owing to tremendous seas and terrific gales, she was sick for six days.

In New York, she got mixed up in the taxi-drivers' strike, and ducked just in time to miss a brick which was hurled through her cab window as she journeyed from the docks to the hotel.

"Had I been hurt it would have served me right," Miss Carroll said. "I love a riot and always run to see all the fun."

Although he flew in the World War, Reginald Denny now admits he is "plane shy."

HONG KONG AND THE NEW TERRITORIES. — No. 140.

Ng-t'ung-shan

FOUR of us climbed Ng-t'ung-shan (just over 3,000 feet) on Saturday January 19. We drove by car to the village of Sha-t'au-kok at the frontier of British Territory where we left the car and took to our legs. There should be no difficulty at all in finding the route to the top but two of us on previous ascents had not, however, climbed it by the proper route. The frontier road is followed for a few hundred yards but then left on the left for a path roughly following the course of the stream. This path leads to the small village of King Hau after which it begins to ascend the pass. The path follows on one or other side of the stream bed to the top of the pass at about 2,000 feet. This path is paved with stones in part and where it is very steep steps are cut in the hillside. The top of the pass is almost due N.W. of Sha-t'au-kok village. At the top, a small path can be seen going to the right just north of two knolls, it should be left as soon as it begins to descend into the valley and the climbers should move off to the right making for the foot of a steep grassy shoulder. The summit of the mountain is N.E. from this point but the shoulder is in the form of a slight curve and at first the climb is made in a E.N.E. direction. This last thousand feet is still climbing especially this first steep grassy shoulder.

Identifying Birds

We took things easily as we wished to see as many birds as possible and in fact identified 31 species, which was not too bad. A Buzzard was seen perched in a tree, a Peregrine falcon swooped down at some chickens quite close to us but missed its kill, a Kite in the air above and on our return a Kestrel perched at the top of a pine tree made four birds of prey. A list containing four birds of prey if made in England would be considered very good. Quite a lot of brightly coloured birds were seen including a Crow-pheasant (black and chestnut), Daurian Redstart (black, white and chestnut) a Red-bellied Rock Thrush (blue and chestnut) a Stonechat, a Little Kingfisher and a White-breasted Kingfisher. The most interesting bird seen was a Plumbeous Water Redstart. During the last 6 years we have only once recorded this species from the Colony. This bird was actually seen in China but as near the border that it might quite easily have had breakfast in British Territory and lunch in Kwangtung, as we did. It was a young male in winter plumage, size and build like that of the familiar Daurian Redstart, body and head grey, wings a brownish grey with two small white wing bars, so far not very exciting; but the bird had a most brilliant tail which appeared to be mostly orange chestnut and was very conspicuous when the bird was in flight.

Time Needed For Trip

The climb, including numerous halts to watch a bird, or admire the view, or recover the breath, took two hours to the top of the pass and another 50 minutes for the advance guard to reach the summit of the mountain. For six climbers allow 2½ hours, for average climbers 3 hours, but those unaccustomed to climbing should allow 3½ hours from Sha-t'au-kok to the summit. The descent was made down a big shoulder running at first S.E. and later in a more southerly direction from the summit. After the steepest part of the climb has been left behind, say 2,000 feet down, a good path can be seen below in the valley on the right. It is a good plan to descend to this path, which leads from a stone quarry. Do not keep to this path for long but take every opportunity, when a side path is seen, of descending still lower into the valley. From the foot of the wooded base of the shoulder the return across paddy fields to the original path and along it to Sha-t'au-kok is straightforward. The descent took us just under 2 hours.

Botanical Finds Few

The plants seen, with one exception, were not exciting. A single red Rhododendron Simsii was seen in flower and several shrubs of R. Farrerac, the purple-pink flowered species, were coming into bloom. The sparsely woody vegetation on the summit was 95 per cent. R. Farrerac. A number of dead branches provided us with sufficient fuel for a jolly fire on the extreme summit of the mountain, round which we sat and toasted cheese sandwiches. Just as we commenced our return journey we espied in a sheltered hollow some 100 feet lower on the N.E. side a number of trees and shrubs. A few of these were crowned with numerous white blossoms. One of the party descended and gathered specimens of a most beautiful, fragrant, pure white Magnoliaceous flower. The opened flowers were between 4 and 4½ inches across. Four trees were in flower and were extremely pleasing to see, the climb was well worth the effort even if the sight of these flowers had been the only reward. The species proved to be Mitchella Maudslayi; it was originally named by Dunn in 1908 from specimens gathered on Fung-tung-shan in the New Territories. Since then it has been found in various localities in Kwangtung also in Fukien and Southern Chekiang.

NEW MUSLIM MOSQUE FOR KOWLOON AREA

LARGE ATTENDANCE AT DEDICATION

PRESENTED BY MRS. DYER

There was a large attendance at the dedication of the new Muslim Mosque at Ho Mun Tin, Kowloon, yesterday afternoon. Mr. J. M. Dyer dedicated the Mosque to the Muslim Community of Hong Kong in the name of his wife, and the Maulvi, the leader in prayer, performed the dedication ceremony.

Imposing Building

The Mosque is situated in most picturesque surroundings near Waterloo Road. Practically the whole of the building, including the foundations and flooring is of cement concrete and English steel.

Immediately in front, is the monument built to the glorious memory of the Indian Troops who fell in action during the Great War.

A unique feature of the building is that the dome is surmounted by a crescent moon several feet in length. There are also six minarets, one at each corner, and two on either side of the dome.

The person responsible for this exclusive design was the architect, Mr. S. B. Ahmed.

At the entrance to the Mosque is an Italian marble tablet with the inscription in English—"This Mosque is erected and presented to the Muslim Community by Mrs. Hallam Lam Dyer, January 26, 1935."

Mr. Dyer's Speech

Mr. J. M. Dyer gave a short speech, saying:—"I am so glad now to see the Mosque completed that I ask you to join with me in returning thanks to Allah who in His Benevolence has guided and made it possible for me to present, on behalf of my wife, this Mosque to the Community."

"It will at the same time interest you to know briefly the development of the cemetery nearby. The area was first allotted to the Military some 17 years ago, but from personal observations from time to time I saw that little use had been made of it, until 1933, when the management was handed over to our Trustees. Subsequently, a sub-committee, composed of Indian Military Officers, and several members of the Indian Muslim Society and of the local community, was formed, with Mr. Abbas Khan as chairman. This sub-committee, aided by the Spirit of Islam, did splendid pioneer work, making rapid progress, despite many difficulties."

"I myself felt sympathetic towards them and their cause, and did what little I could during my periodic visits to the Colony. Others also came forward to help. With generous contributions from the Police Force, Naval Yard Police, Gao Guards, and Private Watchmen, nearly all of whom are members of the Indian Muslim Society, and last, but not least, from the Military, Mr. Abbas Khan was able to build the boundary wall. The Military then did excellent service by active work in levelling the site. How well they have done it, you can see for yourself to-day, and it gave me a great deal of pleasure to supervise on many occasions companies of between 30 and 60 from the former regiments stationed here."

Chinese Assistance

"Our Chinese Brethren also contributed liberally. The Chinese Muslim Society donated $500 while Mrs. (Continued on Page 16)

"LION'S TAIL CUT OFF"

Carter the Great, the noted magician, who is at present fulfilling a seven-day engagement at the King's Theatre has expressed the sanguine belief that variety and vaudeville will regain their former popularity very soon. The legitimate stage has suffered a great deal with the advent of the motion picture, but he contends that people now want to see real tricks and illusions and not mere representations of these with the aid of a camera.

With this in view, Mr. Carter came to the Colony with an entirely new "box of tricks" added to his repertoire. His party comprises 10 people, and his baggage aggregates 31 tons.

He was in America and was booked to play a season in various parts of Brazil. At the last moment, however, an accident occurred to his lion, one of the principal performers in the particular entertainment he proposed putting on. This was occasioned by the sliding grill of the lion's cage dropping and almost severing the animal's tail.

Animal Produced

Attention had to be given to the beast, and Mr. Carter immediately sent a cablegram to his advance agent in Brazil, saying: "Cancel dates in Brazil, lion's tail cut off." It so happened, however, that this occurrence coincided with a heavy

COLOURFUL WEDDING AT CATHEDRAL

SPORTING COUPLE UNITED

CHURCHILL-MOUTRIE

One of the prettiest weddings seen in Hong Kong took place at St. John's Cathedral yesterday afternoon when Joan Mabel Churchill of Hong Kong, the only daughter of the late Dr. J. Aylward Churchill and Mrs. Hance, became the wife of Geoffrey Clifford Moutrie, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Moutrie of Whetstone, Leicestershire, England. The Rev. Dean Swann officiated at the ceremony.

Both the bride and bridegroom are very well known in sporting circles, the former being the Captain of the Hong Kong Ladies' Hockey Club, while the latter is an Inter-port rugby player and a former vice-captain of the Rugby section of the Hong Kong Football Club.

The bride, who was given away by her step-father, Mr. J. H. R. Hance, presented a charming picture in a white satin creation with a long train trimmed with silver thread, and wearing a veil and crown designed on the old Russian bridal style.

Two Bridesmaids

The bridesmaids, the Misses Barbara and Heather Hance, step-sisters of the bride, wore also charmingly gowned in flame silk trimmed with gold and chiffon velvet and with capes, skull caps and mittens to match.

The bridegroom was attended by Mr. M. W. Turner, the Inter-port rugby player and Oxford Hockey Blue, as best man, and by Messrs. J. C. Millar and R. H. Griffiths, also Inter-port rugby players, as groomsmen.

The bride's mother, Mrs. J. H. R. Hance, was dressed in an ensemble of heavy brown crepe with a large picture hat to match and trimmed with feathers of the bird of paradise.

The dresses were executed by Madame O'Obry.

Mrs. R. M. Henderson, wife of the Director of Public Works was the matron of honour, while her son, Master Richard Henderson, was the Page-boy.

Following the wedding ceremony, a reception, at which over 150 guests attended, was held at St. John's Place.

Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Moutrie will spend their honeymoon at Baguio in the Philippine Islands.

Prominent Guests

Among the distinguished gathering who attended the reception were Mr. V. M. Grayburn, Mr. L. M. Murphy, Mr. H. G. Hegarty, Mr. G. de la D. B. Fitzgerald, Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Davidson, Hon. Mr. R. M. Henderson and Mrs. Henderson, Mr. G. S. Dunkley, Mr. L. G. Robertson, Mr. W. H. B. Rigg, Mr. H. B. L. Dowbiggin, Mr. O. J. Edwards, Mr. I. H. Bradford, Mr. and Mrs. O. W. Mortlock, Mr. G. A. Stewart, Mr. J. T. Edkins, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Locke, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Danby, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. E. Bishop, Mr. J. E. Henry, Mr. and Mrs. D. Begg, Miss Audrey Steele, Mrs. P. M. Harrop, Miss V. Blackburn, Mrs. T. E. Pearce, Mr. D. L. Strellett, Mr. and Mrs. L. Goldman, Miss B. Helbling, Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Mitchell, Miss E. O'Hagan, Mr. E. J. Mitchell, O.B.E., Mr. H. R. Forsyth, Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Garrod, Mrs. Sharp and many others.

Miss Betty Brangwin, a great friend of the bride's family, came all the way from Swatow to attend the wedding.

At the reception, the toast of the bride was given by the Hon. Mr. R. M. Henderson, the bridegroom suitably replying.

Later on in the day Mr. and Mrs. Moutrie, driving in a Humber Snipe, were escorted by two armoured cars to Statue Pier, where they embarked on the steam launch Wayfoong for the Empress of Japan which left last night for Manila.

setback received by the British at Loos, and the officials when the cablegram was censored, believed that Mr. Carter was endeavouring to convey the information that the British Lion had its tail cut off. He had to produce the injured animal in order to gain his freedom.

In his youth he practised law for three or four years in Chicago, and also conducted what he terms "a little newspaper" called "The Chicago Tribune." His son, Mr. Lawrence, is a famous magician, and he was in the lighter, and five of his illusions, and intends to follow in the footsteps of his parent.

What Few Simple Beliefs We Need

Perfect Fatherhood: What It Means

He Knows What Is Best For His Children

2.—THE FATHERHOOD OF GOD. (SECOND PORTION) (By the Rev. J. N. Lewis Bryan.)

WHAT is your conception of a perfect Father? I suppose, broadly speaking, we would all agree that he would be kindly, sympathetic, loving. One to whom we could go with all our troubles, from whom we could be certain of a warm welcome and sound advice. One to whom we could look up, respect, and love. One who would go for walks with us, while he held his hand, who would enter into our play and work and would never be too tired or busy when we really wanted him for anything that particularly mattered.

Few parents can live up to these high ideals. We are not always worthy of our children's respect. We let them down sometimes, without realising how much it has meant to them. That is just where we differ so fundamentally from the perfection of the Fatherhood of God.

Meaning Of Fatherhood

Take every quality a father should have, and we begin to approach the meaning of what His Fatherhood means. It means, in the first place, putting away for ever the old ideas of the stern Judge, and the schoolmaster with the big stick, and all the other Old Testament ideas which we used to have. We begin to see, for one thing, that sin is wrong not because He has made rules and said, "If you don't keep them, I will punish you," but because sin is wrong in itself. It would still wrong, even if there were no God. There is nothing in the Bible about motor cars, but it is wrong to lubricate a car with liquid glue, and right to do it with oil. It is wrong to shave a cat in the warm weather, to make it cool, though the Bible does not mention that either. These things are wrong, because they are harmful and unnatural in themselves. They have had results.

It is not a question of God punishing us if we break the rules. St. Paul does its own punishing. If a mother tells a child not to play with the carving knife, but the child disobeys, and cuts itself, it is not the mother's punishment. But you may say, if God is our Father why does He allow all this wrong-doing that goes on? The answer is that He could not do it without stopping mankind altogether.

Why does God Allow It?

Take a familiar case. A drunk on foot driving a motor car runs over a child and cripples it for life. The mother at once says, "Why did God allow it to happen?" She knows that we live in a world where there are occasional drunkards on foot, but she cannot keep her child always under her wing. We have been given powers to control fools and make them harmless. What more can He do? Could He send an angel to guide and keep the car from doing harm? If that happened our roads would get father exciting. If we were always saved from disaster it would mean the end of all human skill and progress. If our instincts and powers are to come to anything, we must have a free hand to try them out, or we should never learn to be responsible; we would never grow up.

In a way it is rather like pain, which is the greatest life insurance in the world. If there were no pain, we should have no sense of danger, and we should be in a perilous position. We shall no longer be afraid of "making friends" with Him, of talking to Him, of taking His hand, which is but another term for prayer, about which we shall think in a later article. Meanwhile let us think over this tremendous and yet simple fact, that God is our Father, and our relationship with Him, and with one another.

CHINESE BAZAAR DOUBTS

The Chinese Bazaar may not be such a success this year, as only three out of the 303 marked off spaces for the Bazaar in Gloucester Road had been applied for up to yesterday afternoon.

In previous years the spaces were taken up about 14 days before the Chinese New Year, but this year there seems to be a lack of both enthusiasm and enterprise. None of the spaces on the main land have yet been applied for.

Carpets In Thrilling Race To Catch President Taft

Mr. Michaelian went to Peking last week to superintend the manufacture of carpets for the big exhibition to be held in New York on February 11. He secured his carpets, but for some unknown reason they could not journey with him to Shanghai, to catch the President Taft, which was sailing the next day.

Mr. Michaelian had to do something for it would have been disastrous for him to have arrived in New York without the carpets. In order to combat this evil he enlisted the services of Messrs. G. E. Marden & Co., Ltd., who in turn invoked the aid of the Shanghai Police, the steamship company, and the Government. The idea, however, could not be induced to co-operate, and it was this factor that made it necessary for the President Taft to sail at 8 a.m.

After much argument it was arranged that the carpets should leave by the following train, which arrived in Shanghai at 7.40 a.m. This left exactly 20 minutes in which to transfer the carpets from the train to the ship.

The Taft was lying four miles down the Whangpoo River and the journey by road from the station to the jetty occupied 12 minutes. Some special efforts would have to be made here, it was obvious, if the carpets were to reach the ship. Special efforts were made, the journey from the station took 10 minutes. In two minutes, however, the Taft was in the lighter, and five of his illusions, and intends to follow in the footsteps of his parent.

HEROISM REWARDED

COXSAIN FROM TAMAR

DARING RESCUE IN HARBOUR

The sequel to a daring rescue in the harbour on August 3 of last year, took place on board H.M.S. Tamar yesterday morning when Sai Fook, a coxswain on the Tamar's Steamboat, was presented with the Bellion Silver Medal and $25 by Commodore Frank Elliott, O.B.E., R.N. While the Tamar's steamboat was proceeding across the harbour on August 3 of last year, it came upon a capsized sampan with a Chinese male and two females in the water.

Sai Fook rescued the three and then without regard to his own personal danger dived under the sampan to rescue a Chinese baby which he succeeded in accomplishing, in spite of the great danger of being caught in the sampan's ropes and rigging.

UNEMPLOYMENT PROBLEMS

Minister Of Labour—
Hears Both Sides

CONFERS WITH EMPLOYERS
AND T. U. G. COUNCIL

London, Yesterday.
The Minister of Labour, Mr. Oliver Stanley, yesterday afternoon outlined to the members of the National Confederation of Employers' Organisations the points he wishes to consider in co-operation with the employers' organisations.

A similar statement was made to the Trades Union Congress General Council, which the Minister had met the previous day.

The points are all connected with the general problem of the absorption of more workers into employment and possible methods of achieving that result.

The President of the Confederation expressed their willingness to co-operate in the inquiries the Minister proposes to make in various industries.—British Wireless Service.

BRITAIN'S STRIDES TO RECOVERY

Spectacular Measures
Not Adopted

EXCESSIVE NATIONALISM CONDEMNED

London, Yesterday.
In a speech at the annual meeting of Lloyd's Bank, the Chairman, Mr. Beaumont Pease, in reviewing the industrial outlook, said that Britain had made considerable progress on the way to recovery without any spectacular measures.

She had shown a spirit of give-and-take, had made a number of trade treaties with nearly a score of nations, and even her adoption of some measure of protection had, he believed, illogical as it might seem, helped to open the eyes of the world to the fact that excessive nationalism was an enemy to the peace, both political and economic, which the world so greatly needed.—British Wireless Service.

WAR-TIME TERROR OF THE SKIES

Singularly enough, in his early days in France, Mannock was a very much misunderstood man. The cars he took to become a master of the art of aerial combat was misconstructed by his comrades. There were murmurings that he had shown signs of being over-careful during engagements—in other words, the innuendo was that he was suffering from "cold feet."

The New Mannock
But there soon came a change. Confident now in his ability, a new Mannock was born, whose phenomenal achievements made his detractors gasp with amazement, and his enemies flee in terror.

In the months that followed he fought with almost frenzied ferocity, sweeping the skies daily for enemy aircraft, and rarely returning without at least one victim of his prowess. Grimly his score of victories mounted until his comrades, believing in his invincibility.

Alas! This fearless fighter at length paid the penalty of his intemperance. After sending an enemy two-seater to its doom Mannock followed the flaming mass to the ground, but he came too low, and the bullet of a German infantryman claimed him.

But he died in the manner he had hoped—at the height of his fame and in the moment of victory.

FREEDOM OF THE PRESS IN CHINA

Once More Announced
By Nanking

HOPES EXPRESSED THAT IT
MAY BE REAL

(From Our Own Correspondent)
Canton, Saturday.

Freedom of the press was again announced last night by the Nanking authorities following a decision of the Executive Yuan that, except as regards military and diplomatic secrets and opposition against the Kuomintang principles or against peace and order, newspapers are free to print what they believe to be the truth, provided there is no malice aforethought.

The decision in favour of the newspapers was made as a result of a petition of the Ta Kung Pao of Tientsin and other journalists' associations requesting that freedom of the press should be permitted.

Foreign newspapers in China are also amenable to the press laws, as the penalty is a postal ban. The China Press of Shanghai has been denied the privilege of postal facilities for the past five months, though no one knows what offence that paper has committed.

Freedom of the press has been proclaimed from time to time, and newspaper proprietors and workers are now hoping that such a declaration will be put into effect without further delay.

South China Win Over Navy In Shield Replay

ATHLETIC WIN

est of the Recreio's efforts to

This, however, in no way belittles the efforts of the Recreio team which at times rose even above the tactics of the Chinese. A. V. Gosano was a tireless worker in the defence line, in clearances and tackling, being as accurate and painstaking as ever. That he failed to win through on more occasions than he did was due in greater part to "A. V.'s" strenuous efforts. Bowen was also seen at his best, and strove wholeheartedly to keep his area clear. To Marces, in the Recreio goal, came shots hard and often, and his work in defending his charge was particularly good.

Half-Backs Falter

The half-backs, however, were rather deluged by the exuberance of Ho Kar-keung and Chan and young Kan-po, the latter finding openings through which to cross their attack. They retrieved some slight measure of consolation in decisive kicking which was generally well-placed and effective. B. Gosano, at centre-forward, was not as his happiest, but gave at some real hot shots to denail, and though neither Gomes and Castilho shone, each contributed some good football in the general play. The Athletic defence, with Mak Sul-hon well to the fore, was the main reason for the inferiority complex of the Recreio forwards, for their tackling and clearing was always fast and first-time, which left very little in the way of openings, even for really speedy player like B. Gosano to take advantage of.

Superiority Asserted

The game opened well with any fast exchanges, but midway through the opening half the Athletic began to take the upper hand, which advantage they held until interval. The Recreio awoke their position after the Athletic had taken the lead, and pressed valiantly for an equalizer, but the good work of the Athletic defence was equal to the attack, and their efforts proved unavailing. From the kick-off the Athletic went down on the attack and their effort just topped the bar, but Ho Kar-keung, following up, scored a glorious opportunity which, however, was snatched up by Liung-ching who sent neatly towards the top right-hand corner of the goal. By a tremendous effort Marces, however, managed to reach it in time.

Gosano Goes Near

B. Gosano had very hard lines to a great header from Goncalves and Wong intercepted a hard hit by Alves just in time. At the Recreio end once again, Marces was again in evidence when cleared from amid a cluster of Athletic players, following which attempts by Tang Kwong-sum and Lui finished just the wrong side of upright. Gomes gave Sul Tin-lim's charge a scare with a cross-drive after a over Recreio move in approach, but the attack was not longed and the Chinese went away free again.

A clever corner shot from Ho Kar-keung brought Marques full length, to save, and two fast runs from Chan and Tsui resulted in no work for that worthy. His charge, however, could not be penetrated and half time arrived with no score. Again it was the Athletic who started the attack from the kick-off, over long passing work between Recreio inside trio gave Alves opening in a rather awkward position, but the latter shot straight and true for goal to give Recreio a lead.

The lead was only one of a few minutes, however, for almost from a resumption Tsui swept through and sent over a high shot towards goal. By clever interception Ho Kar-keung intervened between Marces and the ball and breasted the ball into the net for the equalizer. After several rapid exchanges, the Athletic got away once more, taking possession after a dangerous job from Chan, had been cleared, Ho Kar-keung scored with perfect shot and from a particularly awkward angle.

The Recreio then changed their tactics, and with A. V. Gosano in the centre-forward position, tried everything they knew to score the equalizer, but though their efforts were always close they just could not reach their objective.

INTERPORT

SOCCER TRIAL A REAL TEST

Gruelling Ordeal For Probable Halves

SOUTH CHINA ATTACK WILL TAKE SOME STOPPING

Some interesting facts have come to light since the last Interport trial soccer game on January 13, the most interesting being the rumour to the effect that Li Tin-sang, Tam Kong-pak, Fung King-cheung and Ip Pak-wa, all of whom stand a chance of being selected to represent the Colony, will be unable to get away from Canton on the date of the Interport match owing to the Chinese New Year holidays. The four of them are in the Canton Police Force.

Should this be true, it will come as a shock to supporters of the game, for Li Tin-sang is undoubtedly our finest defender and in a certainty for the right-back position, while Tam Kong-pak and Fung King-cheung are also probable selections.

Test For Half-Backs

This afternoon's clash is likely to develop into a real trial, for, with the whole of the South China "A" forward line playing for Whites, the Blues (Probable selections) defence will undergo a gruelling 90 minutes.

It is good to see that Tso Kwai-shing and Ip Pak-wa are appearing on the Possible right and left wings, for it will give the selectors a good idea of what the probable wing halves, A. V. Gosano and Lee Kwok-wai, are capable of against good wingers.

In Fung King-cheung, Pardoe will be given a very severe test, and if he comes off on top then he can rest assured of his place in the Interport team.

Li Tin-sang and Pile will also be under pressure from Tam Kong-pak and Tui Quee-liang. The latter is one of the fastest forwards in local soccer and everything will depend on Pile to pull the Blues through.

Probable Right Wing

If B. Gosano and Higgins produce the form they displayed a fortnight ago, then only a miracle can prevent a Blues' win.

Bortle-Gosano—played dazzling football in the last trial, and with Higgins, formed the most formidable partnership seen in local soccer this season. On their display they have almost walked themselves into the Interport team.

Howe is being tried out at centre-forward for the second time with Ridley as his left-inside and Bickford on the wing. Ridley on his left is not an ideal partner for Bickford, although his play is very much on the same lines as that of Howe.

Both are the dashing type of forwards and the only difference between them is that Ridley is a stickler and spoils well.

Leung Wing-chiu Given Trial

There is one unusual feature in the composition of the teams, and that is that the Blues' (Probables) left-wing combination have not much opposition for Keneghan and Swain, the Whites' right-half and right-back, who are by no means up to the standard of their opposition numbers.

Leung Wing-chiu is again being given a trial as pivot, in spite of protests from various quarters, who intimate that he should not have been played in view of his recent suspension.

Parker, who played a sterling game in the previous trial, should secure the left-half position, although Lee Kwok-wai is a good man.

The teams, which will meet at 3.30 p.m., are:—

Blues:—Wong Wing; Li Tin Sang, C. Pile; A. V. Gosano, Pardoe (Capt.), Lee Kwok Wai; B. Gosano, Higgins, Howe, Hilley and Bickford.

Whites:—G. Rodgers, Swaine, S. Strange (Capt.); Keneghan, Leung Wing Chiu, Parker, Tso Kwai Shing, Tam Kong Pak, Fung King Cheung, Tay Qwee Liang and Ip Pak Wa.

Reserves:—Durham, Morrison, Lau Sau, Brooke, Dudley, North, Robson, Ellis, Elliot, Ward, Baldry and Fowler.

Athletics:—Sul Tin-lim; Mak Sul-hon, Wong Sik-ping; Ho Chor-yin, Paul Ah-fai; Ng Tak-wing; Tang Kwong-sum, Young Kan-po, Ho Kar-keung, Chan Chan-woo and Li Hung-ling.

Recreio:—E. Marques; A. V. Gosano, Jowon; Silva-Notto, Beltrao, Dolgado, Jansz, Castilho; B. Gosano, Gomes and Alves.

KOWLOON OUT

Returning to the attack, the Police took an early lead. A centre from T. Pile being only partly cleared, Stephens cleverly hooked the ball into the net, Boyes being caught well out of position. Continuing to hold the upper hand, the Police nearly increased their score, when Johnston headed a corner by Pile over the bar. Boyes did well to hold a terrific drive by Moss, after a neat movement between the latter, Green, and Stephens.

Kowloon attempted to get going, but had passing and poor positioning ruined a movement almost before it was started. Moss went away with a splendid pass by Parker, and Johnstone neatly turned his centre towards the corner, but Boyes dived full-length and pushed the ball round the post.

Johnstone then sent Tommy Pile away, and the winger nipped between Morrison and Gilchrist with the ball bouncing ahead of him. Boyes came out, but the slippery ball bounced out of his hands and rolled into the corner, giving the Police a rather lucky goal.

White Tests Perkins

From the kick-off, Kowloon managed to break away, and Jones cleverly tricked the defence and passed in to G. White, whose shot was well gathered by Perkins. Just before the interval, Perkins saved well from Knox and V. White, who sent in surprise shots from long range.

The Police opened the second half at the same fast pace, and efforts by Johnston and Moss went near. Moss once broke right through, only to be neatly robbed by Morrison. Stephens then dribbled through, but shot straight at Boyes from point-blank range.

The Kowloon defence, with the exception of Morrison, were half-hearted in their efforts, and were now making no real attempt to stem the Police rush, and it was only a matter of time before the Police scored again.

Their third goal was not long delayed, and came from a corner kick by T. Pile. The ball dropped to Johnston, who gave Boyes no chance from close in. Kowloon made an occasional break-away, but never looked likely to score, though just before the end Knox sent in a good shot which Perkins almost let slip through his hands.

In the last minute Boyes saved well from Moss, and a fine shot by Pile hit the upright.

Kowloon:—J. Boyes; A. Eastman, (Captain) and Morrison; Davis, S. Biles, J. Gilchrist; V. White, Elliott, G. White, Jones and Knox.

Police:—Perkins; Blackburn and C. Pile; Brooks, Gough and Parker; T. Pile, Stevens, Johnson, Green and Moss.

NAVY OUTPLAY RECREIO IN THE JUNIOR SHIELD

Shortly after the interval the Recreio were awarded a penalty and Santos converted neatly, but an effort from O'Donnell, which resulted in a goal in the next few moments, nullified the former work.

The Navy then slackened their attack, and the Recreio had a considerable spell in their area, but McSweeney proved good enough for anything that came his way, and the score remained unchanged.

Recreio:—Fernandes; Silva, Maher; Castilho, Figuerido, Remedios; Marques, Campos, Santos, Lawrence and D'Aquino.

Navy:—McSweeney; Solomon, Horrell; White, Bowyer, Bright, Dadds, Males, Glass, O'Donnell and Adams.

SAINTS BOW

TO FUSILIERS IN FAST GAME

Soldiers' Defence Save The Day

ROWLANDS IMPRESSIVE

Before very few spectators at the Valley yesterday, the Welch Fusiliers defeated St. Joseph's by three clear goals in a First Division encounter.

The first goal came early, after four minutes, Dennis receiving in front of goal from Hughes, who had made a good solo effort down the wing, and crashing home a first-timer.

Lee, after taking the ball down with a good dribble, had hard luck when his shot was pushed out by Rowlands, and Heridge went very near with a hard ground shot. Rowlands was again called upon shortly after when Rocha sent in a pile-driver, and cleared very well.

After 25 minutes, following an onslaught on the Saints' goal, the Fusiliers were awarded a penalty against Costa for a minor foul and from the spot kick Harrison netted.

Good Chance Missed

Immediately after the Fusiliers' second goal the Saints were awarded a free kick in front of goal just outside the penalty line, but Leonard taking the kick shot straight at Rowlands who had no difficulty in clearing.

The teams changed over right away without the usual five minutes breather and the Fusiliers took play into the Saints' danger zone, and Harrison soon tested Sang, but was unable to penetrate.

The Fusiliers' third and last goal came in the final minutes of the game when Harrison, receiving from Hughes, worked his way into a good position in front of goal and beat Sang with a perfect shot.

Fusiliers:—Rowlands; Wheeler, Keating, Grimley, Keneghan, Ellis; Hughes, Harrison, Dennis, Talbot and Roberts. Saints:—Sang; Souza, Delar; Adria, Leonard, Costa; Lee, Ward, Bentley, Rocha and Heridge.

CLUB SECURE TWO POINTS

Artillery Blunders Responsible

A very disappointing game was witnessed at the Valley yesterday when the Artillery after having had all the play throughout the game were defeated by the Club by one goal to nil.

Shortly before the interval following a scramble on the Gunners' dead line, the referee awarded a penalty against Fisher for handling the ball, and from the spot kick Duncan made no mistake with his shot.

In the second half the Gunners still maintained their superiority, but were unable to penetrate, the Club defence being very sound. Leach was unlucky with a shot after working very hard for it, the ball hitting the upright and going out of play.

The Artillery deserved at least one point, although it was through their own mistakes that they lost.

Artillery:—Mackrell; Price, Yoxall; Nash, Hunt, Fisher, Rivers, Brown, Sparkes, Leach and Taylor.

Club:—Payne; Ralston, Binnie; Hopnell; White, Bowyer, Bright, Dadds, Males, Glass, O'Donnell and Adams.

Second Division

LINCOLNS ALMOST LOSE

PROUD RECORD

Athletic Distinctly Unlucky

OWNER PLAYER SCORES ONLY GOAL OF GAME

The Chinese Athletic were very unfortunate in their Second Division encounter with the Lincolns at Caroline Hill yesterday, the only goal of the match, the goal that enabled the Lincolns to retain their undefeated record in this division, being scored by one of their own defenders.

The best man on the field was Toynce, the Lincolns' outside-left who put up an excellent show and made splendid efforts to score.

The Lincolns attacked from the kick off, McGinness having hard luck with a shot which went over the top. The Soldiers were on short, Shaw failing to put in an appearance; Key consequently filled the left-half and left back positions and did very well. The first and only goal of the game was scored soon after the commencement of the match, when a Lincolns' player on the muddy ground to kick the ball over his head into his own goal. Li actually held the ball, but fell back into the net with it.

Cheung Min Wing played very hard and came near to scoring on several occasions, but was unfortunate.

Athletic:—Li Kwok-ki; Tang Kwong-wing, Chan Sul-chuen; To Hor-hing, Chan Sul-maw, Lau Po; Lai Wai-fai, Lo Wai-ken, Au Kim-fung, Chan Yui-cheung, and Cheung Min-wing. Lincolns:—Taylor; Dobbs, Key, Wildy, Ibbott, Clayton; Rush, Turner, McGinness and Toynce.

FUSILIERS BEAT MEDWAY IN RUGBY GAME

Medway failed to score. The Medway retailed from the re-start, but, despite several break-aways by Hammett and Lt. Cheyne they were unable to score.

In the second half the Fusiliers had slightly the better of the exchanges, and scored again through Floyd who crossed over wide of the posts, following a passing back. Lloyd again failed with the kick.

Just before time the Fusiliers added their third and last try when Fus. (62) Davies fell over the line in a scramble to score, Lloyd failing with the kick for the third time.

R.A. And East Lancs Draw

The second game was between the Royal Artillery and the East Lancashire Regiment and resulted in both sides scoring an unconverted try.

The game was very evenly contested throughout, although the Gunners deserved to win, the slippery surface robbing them of several potential scoring efforts.

Lt. Metcalf, the Gunners' left centre-three-quarter, was in very good form, being seen in several dazzling runs. He opened the scoring early in the opening half and failed with the converting kick.

Just before the interval Gnr. Barracough and Gnr. North were seen in several good movements, but the tackling of the East Lancs nullified any possible score.

In the second half the East Lancs were seen to advantage in numerous rushes, Lt. Harrison and Pte. Williams being conspicuous.

The latter eventually levelled the scores when he crossed over.

The team is:—A. N. Other; E. F. Selk and G. Sommer; J. Farmer, D. McKellan and E. A. Baker; S. Fowler, G. Fowler, W. J. Brown, J. Moeller and T. J. Price (Captain).

BALL BURSTS

For the Engineers, the best player of the afternoon was undoubtedly Derby, who lead the forwards. His hard work and brilliant efforts when raiding the Service Corps' goal assisted greatly in the Sappers' attacks. The Sappers' forwards were in good form, and Callard, on the right wing, made some good centres which at times worried the Service Corps considerably.

Fifteen minutes before the final whistle a catastrophe occurred when the ball burst, and play was held up for some 10 minutes whilst another was obtained from the nearby Barracks.

KOWLOON INDIANS MAINTAIN THEIR HOCKEY POSITION

Hollywell, the left-back, was sound in defence and his strong passes were very accurate, his only drawback being his lack of speed, but he made up for this with his neat stickwork.

Another player, who worked hard in defence was Bosley, the Naval centre-half. He was also prominent in the attack.

The Indian team gave a very weak display in all departments, their backs, J. Singh and A. Singh, being the only members of the team to show their true form.

From the beginning of the game the Indians held the upper hand, and if it had not been for Baldwin, the scoring would have started within the first two minutes. After 10 minutes of continuous pressing the Indians made a determined attack and netted through Pinto, inside-left, after Baldwin had partially cleared a hard shot from G. Singh.

The play during the second half was of a lower standard than that of the first half, and neither team was seen in good movements. After playing for 20 minutes G. Singh sent his team further when he netted with a well placed shot.

Y.M.C.A. HOCKEY WIN OVER DUNCAN

In spite of Whiskard's efforts, the "Y" scored their first goal after 20 minutes. The Naval forwards then made a surprise attack and equalized through Dicks, their leader. Moeller, however, again placed the "Y" in the lead with a neat goal just before the interval.

On the resumption the "Y" went further ahead when Moeller completed his "hat-trick and followed this with a fourth goal a few minutes from time.

Y.M.C.A. SELECT HOCKEY ELEVEN FOR MACAO GAME

The intermediate line is significant in view of D. McLellan's return to the "Y" team after an absence of nearly a season.

McLellan, who formerly captained the "Y" team, had to choose between Rugby and hockey and selected the former. He was elected captain of the Rugby section of the Hong Kong Football Club this season, and of the Interport rugby team.

The team is:—A. N. Other; E. F. Selk and G. Sommer; J. Farmer, D. McKellan and E. A. Baker; S. Fowler, G. Fowler, W. J. Brown, J. Moeller and T. J. Price (Captain).

HONG KONG LIKE HOLLYWOOD

"We really hate to leave—Hong Kong. But then we want to see more of the East, that is why we are going to depart as soon as we have finished in Canton" one of the blondes told the Sunday Herald yesterday.

The Misses Shirley Roberts, Leslie Brighton, Margaret Marston, Holly McLeod, Maureen Dunlak and Eleanor Walton, the Six Hollywood Blondes who proved a success on each occasion they appeared at the various houses of entertainment, made their final appearance in the Colony last night at the Hong Kong Hotel Roof Garden.

They are leaving for Canton on Tuesday and will probably stay there for about five days. On their return they will immediately leave for Manila.

"We have been entertained extensively, and we must say the Hong Kong people are the best we have met during our tour in the East" she said.

When questioned regarding romances, the Blondes smiled, one saying that they had had none so far; one, however, said "Well, we cannot say that we have been dull and staying indoors all the time. There were a few flirtations, but none of them were serious," whereupon everyone of them laughed.

The Blondes made successful appearances at the Hong Kong and Peninsula Hotels, the King's Theatre, the Oriental Theatre, and the Majestic Theatre during their one month's stay in the Colony. They also went to Macao for a few days.

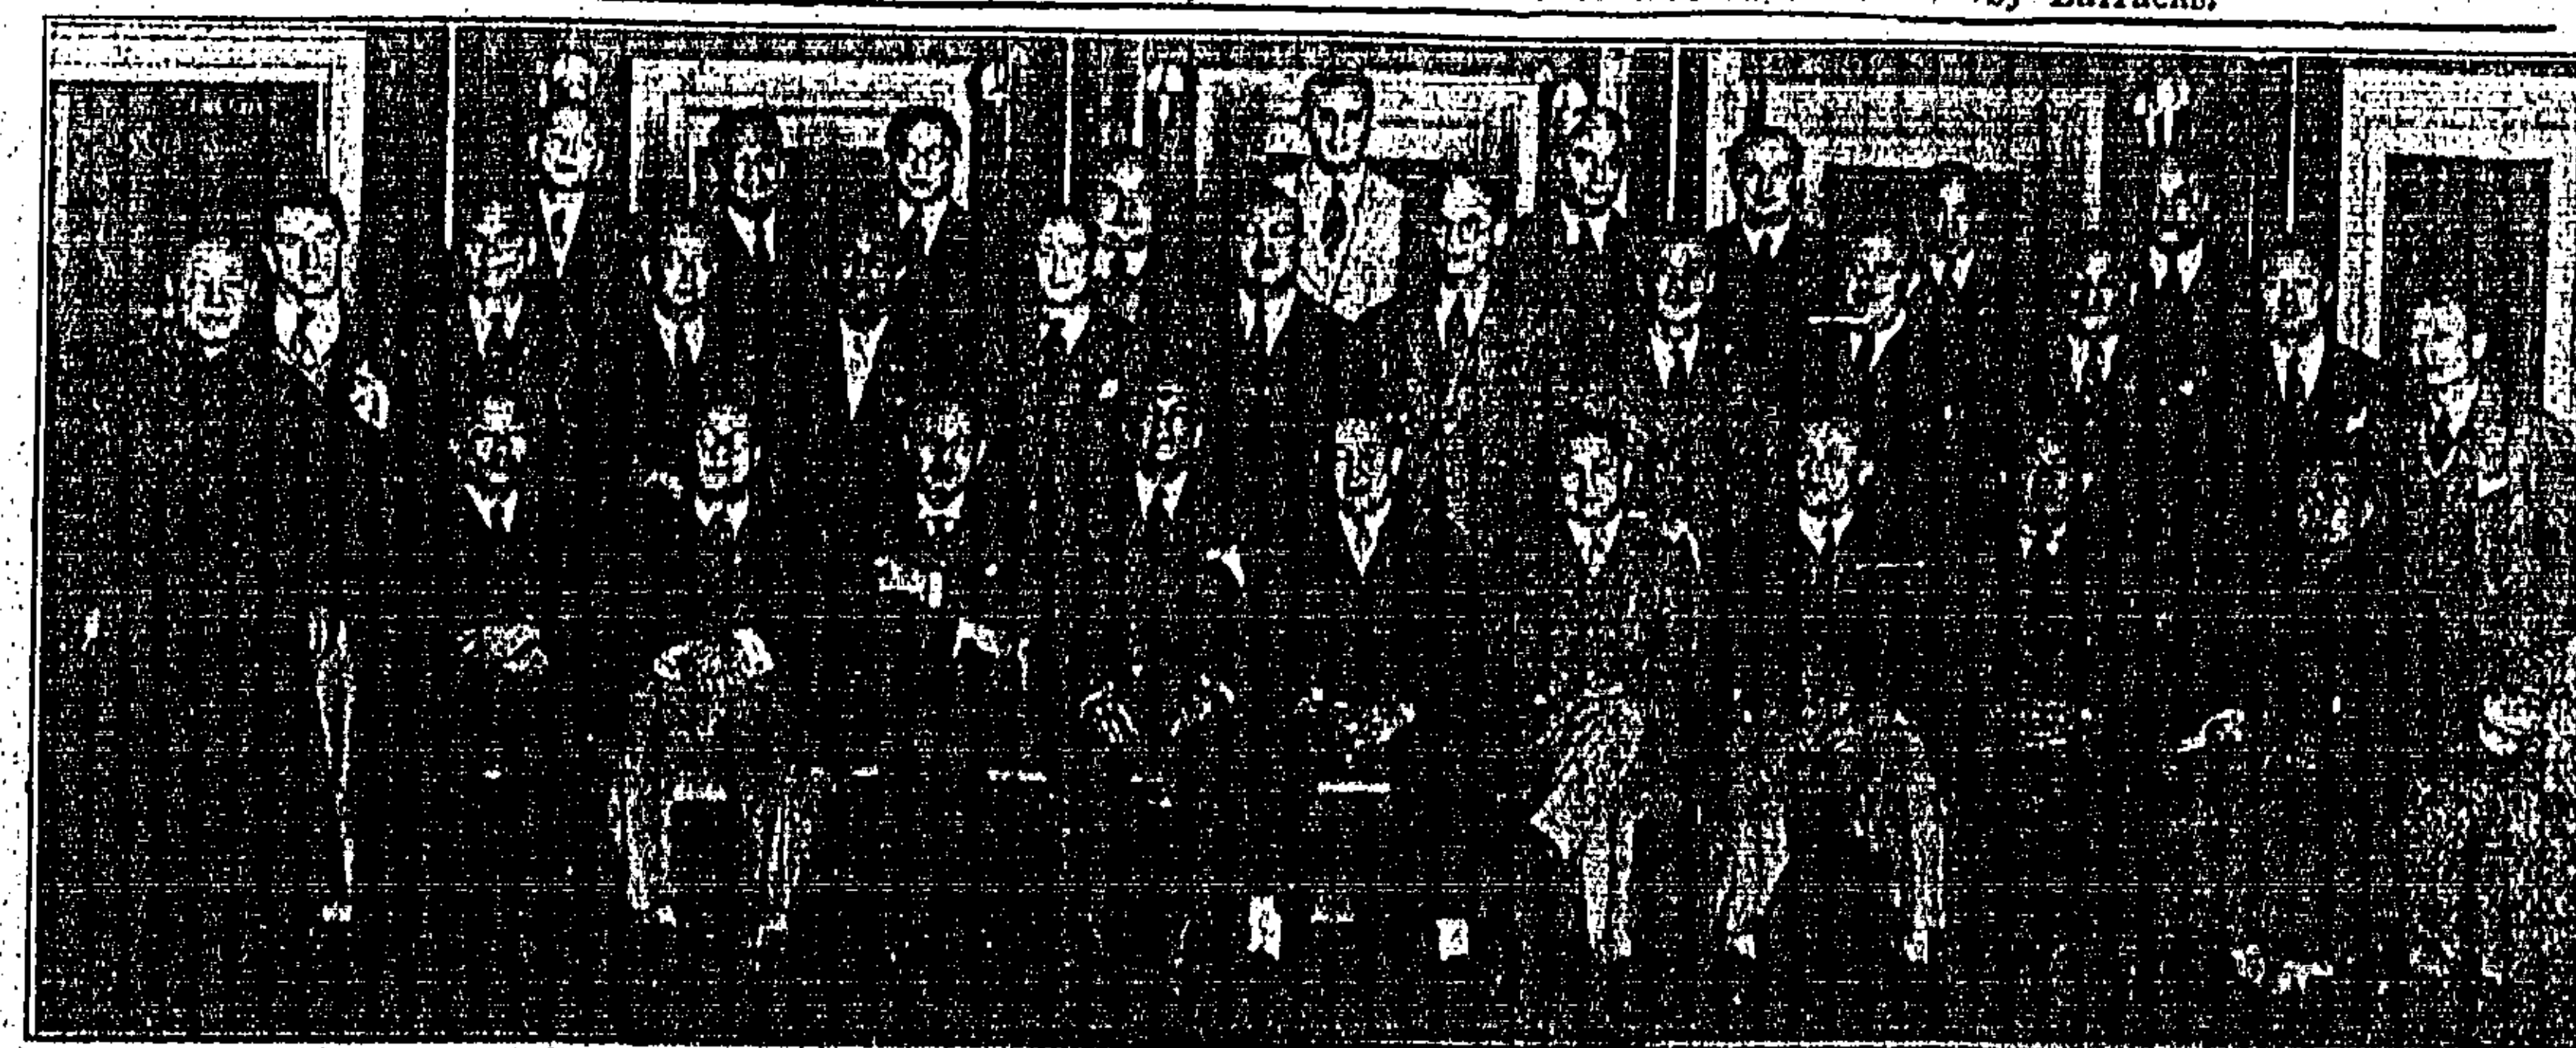

CRAIGENGOWER WHIST DRIVE

Mrs. R. R. Wood led Mrs. H. Bear for first place at the fortnightly whist drive held at the Craigengower Cricket Club last night. Mr. Watson was the winner of the first prize for the gentlemen's section, while Mr. Mathew won second place.

Both sides agree that the front has remained quiet, with no troop movements since yesterday, though Chinese sources report that they have learned of Japanese movements inside what the Chinese call the Jehol border. They state that there are 3,000 Japanese troops at Takochon and 1,800, with 60 to 71 armoured cars, at Tatan.—Rout.

SIX HOLLYWOOD BLONDES

Final Performance Last Night

LARGE AND ENTHUSIASTIC AUDIENCE

Nearly 200 people attended the dinner dance in the Hong Kong Hotel Roof Garden last night when the Six Hollywood Blondes made their final appearance in the Colony before leaving for Manila.

The large audience was highly appreciative of the talent of the American sextet, the only regret felt being that they were appearing the last time. These versatile ladies gave a delightful and varied programme for their final performance.

The first turn, beginning at about 10 o'clock, was a solo hula-hula by Miss Maureen Dunlak, garbed in the correct grass skirt of the South Seas, while the remaining five Blondes, similarly attired, formed a suitable background. At the conclusion of the dance there were enthusiastic calls for an encore, which were readily responded to.

The second dance on the programme was a rhythmic tap-dance by Miss Leslie Brighton, which brought loud applause from the whole house.

All Six Blondes took part in the final, the programme coming to an end just before midnight.

SHORT STORY.

Eyes In The Air

By F. A. M. WEBSTER

WHITE, silent, immense, a world of tumbled mountains stretched away and away. The foot of man had never trod, which the eyes of man had never seen, were broken here and there by dark patches of pine trees and gorges so deep that the shadows collected between their frowning walls looked like wedges of solid ebony.

There was no movement in earth or air, that world seemed utterly dead; and yet, high up in the blue empyrean, a single speck hung motionless; so high up, so still that it looked like some tiny insect, or one of those annoying "spots" that float persistently before the vision of a bilious person.

Presently a snow hare leaped out from the fringes of a pine forest and, instantly, that speck in the brooding heavens grew bigger, as an eagle came racing a mile downwind in less than thirty seconds. In the appalling silence, which prevailed the hare heard clearly the whistling of the wind as the great golden eagle hurtled earthwards.

With never a glance thrown upwards the creature raced for safety, but cruel talons closed upon him before he could reach the shelter of the trees and then his body went limp, as the talon of the eagle's strong hind toe bit clean through his back-bone.

Aquila rose at once and flew at leisurely speed to a ledge of rock, 1500 feet up the mountain, where he and his mate started repairing their eyrie some four months earlier, both birds battling home through the wintry gales with big pine branches gripped fast in their curved beaks.

Seven weeks later two large, round, white eggs had been laid and now there were two hungry, week-old eaglets, clad in warm little coats of white down, eagerly waiting for food.

The mother, from a view-point close at hand, watched the return of her mate, but he did not remain long at the eyrie, and, within a few seconds of his taking wing, she sailed down to her nest, tore up the limp body of the white hare he had left behind and commenced feeding her noisy, hectoring daughter.

The male eaglet got what was left, after his sister's voracious appetite had been satisfied. Even so, he not allowed to enjoy his scanty meal in peace, for his bad-tempered sister chased him round and round the nest. The mother sat by, totally indifferent to the squabbling of her progeny.

Her eye-lids were open, but her sight was veiled by the winking membrane which birds possess, drawn over the pupils of her eyes. She knew that her half-starved son's greater agility would save him from the attacks of his sister and that, a month hence, when they would just be getting their first feathers, the two young eaglets would be living happily enough together.

Meanwhile, Aquila had mounted once more upon soaring pinions and now hung poised in the eye of the golden sun, while his gaze swept left and right, backwards and forwards, across his vast domain.

The eaglets had been fed. It still remained for him to find food for himself and his mate, but below him not a speck showed and nothing moved upon the stinkless white expanse of the virgin snow-field.

With wings beating slowly the great eagle mounted in a series of wide spirals to a yet greater altitude, which would give him a more extensive view of the land spread out beneath him. And still nothing moved in all that broad expanse of solitude.

Wings fluttering, the beautiful bird hung poised or, with sudden beat of powerful pinions, sailed majestically from side to side. At last his patience was rewarded by the appearance of a small herd of wild sheep, high up the side of one of the mountains.

Aquila watched them for a moment, then folded his wings and dived earthwards with the speed of a falling thunder-bolt. Lower and lower the gleaming, brown body hurtled and then, when it seemed inevitable that Aquila must crash to his death, the wings were partly opened, the disposition of the head was slightly altered and his headlong down-rush flattened out with the easy grace of an airplane making a perfect landing. The sheep had scattered before ever the eagle's shadow fell upon them; but, as his body shot forward, travelling parallel to earth, his strong talons closed unerringly upon the well-grown lamb he had selected as his victim. But, although his claws bound fast, he did not kill the lamb outright and it struggled so violently with its hindquarters that he was forced to drop it before he had risen a couple of hundred feet.

The lamb fell upon rough, stony ground and was killed instantly, while Aquila, freed from its weight, shot upwards. The female eagle, who had seen her mate dropping like a stone from the heavens, had meantime left the eyrie to hover close at hand. Now, seeing the crushed body of the lamb resting upon the rocks, she pounced upon its flanks. Aquila joined her, and in a moment both birds were tearing at the carcass.

Before their meal was finished, however, a most strange sound disturbed them, the like of which they had not heard before. It was like a low, vibrant humming at first, but the noise increased rapidly in volume, until a droning, intolerable hum seemed to fill the entire universe. Then a black shadow passed over them.

Terrified for the safety of her eaglets, the mother took off and sped away to her eyrie. Aquila rose also; and, flying as he had never flown before, strove to take the air of this strange but rash intruder. The bird, monster, or whatever the thing was, might be as big and as powerful as the fabulous Great Auk itself, and still Aquila would allow no trespasser in his domain.

On and on the great eagle flew, mounting higher and ever higher, until he thought that he had reached the altitude from which to stoop and strike. But as he fell, with hooked beak and curved talons itching for action, force heart beating madly, the thing simply shot away from under him. By the time he had climbed to altitude again it was no more than a dwindling speck in the distant heavens.

Aquila, poised upon fluttering, widespread wings, waited until the decreasing hum of the monster's passing had sunk into silence and the infinite blue of the heavens had absorbed the last vestige of that fast diminishing speck. Then he flew back to his eyrie, a puzzled and an angry monarch.

Many years had gone by since any bird of prey had dared to fly in the skies which Aquila regarded as his own preserves; nor, indeed, was there room for many eagles in that part of the world, for the mountains were barren, desolate slopes, unable to support much life, beyond a few birds, rather like ptarmigan, some mountain sheep, and an assortment of foxes, hares and other small creatures. But today this strange monster had passed through Aquila's territory, and now the great eagle sat on a lonely pinnacle of rock dreaming of the fight there was bound to be should the rash intruder dare to return.

Meanwhile, Ramon Nunez had landed at San Pedro, and the town was en fete because he had flown over the wide ranges of unexplored mountains that had never been crossed in all the long history of man.

That night the intrepid young man was made much of by his friends, while the local pressman gave him no peace because they wanted the story of his epoch-making flight across the mountains. But Nunez gave the same laughing answer to both intimate friend and importunate reporter.

"Yes, I have mapped out an airway over the mountains which will enable future aviators to avoid the earth attractions and the air pockets," he stated, "but I'm not giving away a scrap of information, either as to the route I followed or any difficulties. I may have experienced until my chief has read my report."

"But, sonhor," protested the Pressman, "dozens of other pilots have attempted the same flight without success; you alone have crossed the last land of mystery; surely you must have been very lucky; will you not tell us your story?"

"No," answered Nunez, "the land of mystery has kept its secret for thousands of years. What is (Continued on Page 19)

RE-ENTRY CARDS IN CONTRACT

(By Lt.-Col. H. M. Beasley)

THERE are some tantalising and at the same time interesting situations which arise during the course of a Contract Bridge rubber.

I refer now to difficult points in the play of a hand by the declarer. The experienced player will no doubt recognise the fact that he has encountered similar problems, and knows therefore how to deal with them, but to the novice the solution is not easy.

Here is one particular case, and there are many similar with which you will have to contend. You may find that you have a good suit in dummy's hand which you can easily establish, but you are unfortunately still faced with the fact that dummy holds one rather doubtful card of re-entry, which you will need to enable you to cash in these winning tricks.

Before you decide on your plan of the play, you must consider carefully what hope there is

- of our ever being able to make use of the established winning tricks, or
- whether it would not be advisable to abandon an attempt to establish these winning tricks and adopt other tactics which may offer a better chance of success.

You must therefore make a mental review of the possible distribution of the important cards held by the opponents. When you have made up your mind that they must be distributed in a definite way, if you are ever to attain your objective, you must then boldly play the hand as if the distribution of the cards were exposed, and known to you, and just hope for the best.

Here is the problem to which I refer:
The Contract is 3 No Trumps by South. The opening lead by West is the 5 of Clubs.

North:-

- S-2 3
- H-4 6
- D-A J 10 9 7 2
- C-Q 4 2

South:-

- S-A Q 9 5
- H-A K Q 3
- D-Q 3
- C-A 8 6

With this combination you are in a rather awkward dilemma. You (South) would like to develop the Diamond suit, but have only two Diamonds. You may find that East holds the King and two or three small ones.

If, when you commence to clear the Diamond suit, East does not play the King until the second round, you will then find yourself in possession of several winning diamond tricks, provided you can get into North's hand with the Queen of Clubs; but the Queen of Clubs is not a sure card of re-entry.

How are you to play the hand? West leads the 5 of Clubs. If this card is his fourth best, East holds two cards higher than the 5 (by the rule of eleven). It would be futile to play the Queen of Clubs from North's hand on the first trick, as this procedure would extract his only possible card of re-entry for the Diamond suit.

A Common Problem

North must play the 2 of Clubs on the lead of the 5. If East now plays the 7, what should South play?

If South plays the 8, there is no possibility of establishing the Queen in North's hand as a card of re-entry; West may hold 4 or 5 to the King, consequently, if you do not take the first trick with the Ace, the Queen of Clubs can never become a card of re-entry. You will certainly lose one trick by playing the Ace on East's 7; if East holds the King, 7 only, and West 5 to the Jack. However, if this is not the distribution of the suit, the only line of play which will leave you with a hope of establishing the Queen of Clubs as a card of re-entry is to win the first trick with the Ace of Clubs. When one day, or one week, in all that space of time? Soon I shall fly back to Huano to make my report, and then my chief can tell the world, or not, as he sees fit."

And that was all the information they were able to get out of him. Two days later, as the dawn was breaking, he stood at the side of his airplane, chatting with the station ground officer.

"Do you think you will be able to find your way back safely?" queried the official.

Nuñez permitted himself to smile. "I tell you that I have conquered the very spirit of that land of desolation," he boasted. Then he climbed into the cockpit of his machine and gave the order "Contact."

More than two hundred miles away Aquila had just flown back to the circle with a hare, he had caught for the breakfast of his young eaglets. But one hare, as he well knew, would not satisfy their well-nigh insatiable appetites and so once again he took wing, while his mate came dropping down to the nest.

He was soon high up in the morning heavens, eyes in the air watching the earth for his lawful prey, when his sharp sense of hearing

SAUSAGES BY DAY BOMBS BY NIGHT

Irish "War" Claim In Court

MACHINE DESTROYED BY FREE STATE TROOPS

A machine which made sausages by day and bombs by night in a confectioner's shop in Cork was the subject of a claim for compensation at Cork last month.

William McLaron, formerly a confectioner at North Main-street, Cork, applied £250. He had returned from Montreal with his son to prove his claims, which included items for equipping a foundry for making munitions for the Irish Republic Army.

It was stated that the innocent-looking sausage machine was housed in his shop near the Bridge. Whenever the police called, it was making sausages. At night it was connected up with another contrivance for making bombs.

The machine was finally destroyed by Free State troops. Judge O'Connor reported for £112 and allowed £40 expenses.

the Diamond suit is established, lead a small Club up to the Queen.

You will find that a situation of the above description is not at all unusual, and the points to which I have drawn your attention may assist you to solve a similar problem.

The Inhibitive Bid

The problem given to-day is an illustration of the employment of what is commonly known in Contract as an "Inhibitive Bid."

An "Inhibitive Bid" is in reality a bluff bid, introduced during the late stages of the bidding with the express object of deterring the opponents from leading a suit in which you have a losing trick.

This bid can sometimes be employed with success in the case of slam bids where the opponents would be deceived by the nature of the bid, and in consequence discouraged from leading the only suit which will break the Contract. However, be on your guard for a bid of this nature if you are playing against a slam bid.

Ann Harding Copies Mrs. Vanderbilt's Action

New York.

Miss Ann Harding, the film actress and former wife of Mr. Harry Bannister, the actor, is taking a leaf out of Mrs. Vanderbilt's book and is in Reno seeking full custody of her daughter, Jean, aged nine.

She already has the custody of the child for ten months each year, but she thinks she should have her all the time.

The divorce decree gave her former husband the right to have Jean with him for the other two months, and he is defending the once again detected that faint distant drone, which sounded so much like the buzzing of an angry insect. Aquila checked in the middle of a long, slanting glide and rose in a series of big spirals, with wings beating furiously. This time he had no intention of allowing the enemy to cheat him by the deceptive speed of his flight.

Louder and louder the vibrant hum of powerful engines echoed through the abyssal silence, larger and larger grew the speck that had appeared suddenly in the sky to the north. Eyes in the air watched it take shape, but Nuñez did not see the golden eagle, for some instinct of the wild had warned the bird to poise himself in the eye of the sun.

Aquila waited until the oncoming airplane was flying perhaps 300ft. below him. Then, backed by the sun, he tore downward, flying on a long slant to meet it. And still Nuñez did not see this fierce enemy until a mid-air impact seemed inevitable.

In the last saving second, however, the glare of the sun, flung back from the whirling propeller blades, struck the eagle full in the eyes, dazzling him and causing him to swerve instinctively to one side. Otherwise man, bird and machine must have gone crashing earthwards.

As it was, Nuñez flung up his hands to protect his face, and the machine, momentarily out of control, slipped into a spinning nose-dive. Aquila came round in a wide sweep, screaming with baffled rage. His harsh cries quickly brought his mate upon the scene and Nuñez, pulling his plane out of its dangerous dive just in time, found not one but two great eagles circling overhead and waiting to renew the attack.

How the man longed, in that moment, to feel the spade-grip of a machine-gun nestling into his hand, but he was totally unarmed. Faster he flew, striving desperately to win free and climb again, but still the great birds flew above him, with one or other of them constantly rushing at his unprotected head, only to sheer to one side in the nick of time.

Nuñez was baffled, for all the time the birds were driving him him down, and suddenly he realised that although he had found a route that had enabled him to avoid air-pockets and earth attractions, he had yet to conquer the very spirit of the last land of mystery, which was impregnated by those two great golden eagles.

The fascinated him. He could not take his eyes off them. Suddenly an icy blast struck him in the face as a pass in the mountains opened up before him.

To enter that pass meant certain death, for flying between the frozen walls would be impossible. The man moved joy-stick and control bar, but the plane responded sluggishly. Nearer he drew to the frowning, merciless mountain tops, and knew he could not clear them. There was a rending crash, a sudden burst of flame, and Aquila and his mate rose in soaring spirals to avoid the oily smoke that rose from the blazing airplane.

Next day the Director of Civil Aviation ran a red line through "Proposed Route 13 Huano-San Fero," for Nuñez had not returned, and too many good pilots had been lost in fruitless attempts to open that road.

Far off, on wide spread wings, Aquila hovered, watching over the last land of mystery. Eyes in the air, searching a white, silent, immense world of tumbled mountain tops for any sign of his lawful prey moving upon the virgin snow-fields. There was no movement in earth or air; that world seemed utterly dead.

THE END.

UNIMPRESSIVE SOCCER TRIAL IN SHANGHAI

Interporters Defeat Combined XI

SHUTE ABLE TO MAKE TRIP TO COLONY

Shanghai, Yesterday.
The Shanghai Interport football eleven this afternoon defeated a side composed of members of the Police Recreation Club and the Interport Reserves by 5 goals to 3, in a very unimpressive trial match. It was announced that J. Shute, the Police full-back, would after all be able to make the trip to Hong Kong after having previously stated that he was unable to go.—Reuter.
It was announced by Reuter on Friday night that L. K. Tai, S. H. Van, Sun Kam-shun, the former Chinese Athletic player who now plays for the Three Cultures, and J. Shute, the Police full-back, were unable to make the trip to Hong Kong and that L. Greenberg of the Jewish Recreation Club would travel with the team in place of S. H. Van on the left-wing.

ARMED ROBBERY ON LAMA ISLAND

Spinster's Mother Clubbied

Armed with knives, pieces of wood and iron bars, five men made a forced entry to an unnumbered house in Chap Tuk Village, on Lama Island, just before midnight on Friday, and stole $10 in cash, and clothing valued at $8.

The inmates of the house, Chan Ying, a spinster, and her mother were awakened by the sound of the main door being forced open. Five men then entered and threatened them with knives and iron bars.

Unfortunately the mother cried out "thieves, thieves" and was knocked on the head with a piece of wood by one of the men, who afterwards stuffed some rags into her mouth to prevent her from calling out again.

After ransacking the house for over 15 minutes, the men escaped with the money and clothing, in the direction of Tai Ping Village.

All the robbers had their heads covered with cloth with slits for their eyes.

No arrests have been made by the Police.

It is learned from military circles here that the Communists under the command of Chu Teh are launching several attacks on Chikiang in Southern Szechuen, the gateway to Chungking. Chikiang is, however, strongly defended by Szechuen provincial troops.

The Communists were able to penetrate into Szechuen via Chikiang in Northern Kweichow, which was abandoned by the division under Lieut-General Hou Chih-tan, who fled, it is alleged, with members of his family to Chungking, where he was placed under arrest for desertion.

DESTITUTE POOR IN CANTON

Unified Control Of Relief Work PLAN APPROVED

Canton, Yesterday.
With a view to improving the system of poor-relief, the Yen Oi Charity Institute recently drew up a plan for the unified control of the various charity organizations in the province.

As a result of appeals for the donation of clothing to the poor, the Institute has received a quantity of cotton clothes during the last few days. Those received yesterday were about 140. The clothes will be distributed to the destitute shortly.—Central Press.

SUCCESS CLAIMED IN KWEICHOW

General Wong Chah-lich, Chairman of the Kweichow Provincial Government and concurrently Commander of the 25th Army Corps, arrived in Tsunyi on Tuesday and from there proceeded next day to Fanchu to direct operations.

The Training Division, formerly under Lieut-General How Chih-tan, has been re-organized by General Wong. The new commander of the division is Lieut-General Kong Pei-yu.—Central Press.

OPENING STAGE OF INQUIRY INTO MOHAWK SINKING

The Convention was signed in London in 1929 and subsequently ratified by numerous British Dominions and foreign countries.—Reuter.

The Szechuen provincial troops in dealing with the Communists but no Nanking divisions have yet been sent to reinforce the provincial forces at Chikiang.

Public bodies have so far refrained from issuing any circular telegrams until some official or semi-official statement leads the way. Several vernacular newspapers strongly criticized the Japanese invasion of Charhar and declare that Japan wants to strengthen her grip on Mongolia before Great Britain and the United States have formed a definite line of action.

"The encroachment on Charhar bids fair to lead to further occupation of Chinese territory," the Min Kuo Jih Pao, the local official Chinese daily, declares in an editorial to-day. "Since the failure of the naval conversations in London, there is a tendency between Britain and the United States to co-operate, but Japan strikes first before the co-operation assumes tangible shape."

"The great calamity to China has begun. We cannot regard the matter as a local incident; we must not be filled with fear and retreat. Neither should the Government ask the generals at the front to negotiate with a view to seeking a temporary respite," the Journal continues.

Attacking the "foreign policy of the responsible authorities," it points out that such a stand is promoted by lack of principles, by fear and submission, and that a new policy is necessary to have the country.
